30% Gasoline Cut Is Objective

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's newly named energy czar, William E. Simon, said Tuesday the Nixon administration is considering taxes, price increases, rationing or a combination of the three to cut gasoline consumption by 30 per cent.

After President Nixon personally announced Simon's appointment as head of a new federal energy office, Simon told reporters that a decision on whether to ration gasoline must be made by the end of the month.

"We will take whatever action is necessary," Simon, deputy secretary of the Treasury Department, said. He said rationing has many problems and he considers it a last resort.

But he said fuel prices will have to rise, not only to help ration out supplies but to give the oil industry an incentive to increase supplies.

As a starter, he said, the Cost of Living Council will announce price increaes in fuel oil Wednesday to encourage more production of the commodity as opposed to gasoline, which is more profitable to produce.

Nixon said he is personally assuming chairmanship of the Cabinet-level Energy Emergency Action Group, which was headed by energy adviser John A. Love until Love's resignation Monday.

Nixon appointed Simon executive director of the Cabinet group, thus giving him the energy controls over policy, programs, and in addition tax policies relating to energy.

The President said he would seek legislation to create the Federal Energy Administration, but in the meantime offices now under other agencies and slated for eventual transfer have been directed to cooperate with Simon. The House Commerce Committee Tuesday voted in favor of creating such an administration which would institutionalize the energy office. The bill is in a different form, however, from what the administration wants.

Simon endorsed government estimates that a 30 per cent reduction in gasoline consumption is required and he said that only through public cooperation can the nation "get through an extremely difficult winter."

But Simon said, "The choice is between some discomfort or inconveniences, and jobs."

In addition to restructuring petroleum prices, Simon said the administration was also considering price increases or taxes on the use of natural gas and electricity, also to reduce demand.

And he said measures were being studied to encourage commercial airlines to shift from kerosene-based jet fuel to naphtha-based fuel. He said the administration was urging oil states to produce oil above their "maximum efficiency rate," a production level established to protect long-range oilfield productivity.

He said 26 electric power plants were being pressed to switch from burning oil to burning coal.

In addition, Simon said the administration would urge development of Naval petroleum reserve No. 4, an unexplored area in Northern Alaska near the location of the huge oil discovery of 1968.

With the anticipated fuel price increases aimed at providing investment capital to increase production, Simon said that some way must be found to make sure additional profits are in fact channeled into energy research and development and exploration, and not merely distributed as a windfall to stockholders.

Vicious Storm Chills State

South central and eastern Nebraska caught the onslaught Tuesday of a vicious ice, wind and snow storm which downed power and telephone lines, glazed highways and contributed to the death of at least one person.

A truck driver was killed when his rig overturned and caught fire on icy U.S. 81 two miles north of Geneva late Monday night, the State Patrol reported.

In Omaha, Frank W. Powell, 68, was dead on arrival at a hospital following an accident in the northwest part of the city Monday afternoon.

Police said Acting Coroner James Keenan ruled the death a heart attack and an autopsy would not be ordered. Officers said the death would not be counted as a traffic fatality.

In an area east of Beatrice, power and telephone lines took a beating leaving a number of communities without service.

Humboldt, Table Rock, DuBois, a portion of Pawnee City, and Summerfield, Kan., remained without electricity late Tuesday, according to an official of the Nebraska Public Power District. For a time, Nehawka and Union were also without electricity.

An estimated 35 to 40 NPPD workers from Lincoln, York and Norfolk were sent to the area to help restore service after high winds caused the ice-coated poles to break, according to Roger Bogus, NPPD information specialist.

Damage was also extensive to telephone facilities in the southeast portion of the state, a Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Company spokesman revealed.

Freezing rain resulted in icy wires and broken telephone poles in an area from Superior east to Fairbury, Beatrice, Tecumseh and Auburn, and north to Nebraska City and Plattsmouth.

Seventeen southeast Nebraska communities were still without long distance phone service late Tuesday, the LT&T reported. Many rural telephone lines were also out of service.

Towns minus long distance service were Hardy, Byron, Diller, Harbine, Alexandria, Jansen, Odell, Plymouth, Virginia, Nehawka, Tecumseh, Douglas, Adams, Johnson, Manley, Murdock and Elmwood.

"Every available crewman is out working to restore service as quickly as possible," the LT&T spokesman added.

Meanwhile, the State Department of Roads warned that highways all over southeast Nebraska were ice-covered and extremely hazardous late Tuesday.

Dozens of schools were closed in towns and rural areas hit by the storm.

Snowfall, following the freezing drizzle, ranged up to three inches at Omaha where winds up to 40 miles per hour caused officials to close Eppley Airfield to all commercial traffic at mid-morning.

Interstate 80 from Lincoln east to the Platte River had spotted ice Tuesday night, the State Patrol reported, and from the Platte River to Omaha was "solid ice and snow covered." Several blockages were reported on I80 and other roads due to trucks stalled or jacknifed.

Auburn topped the rainfall total with 2.16 inches.

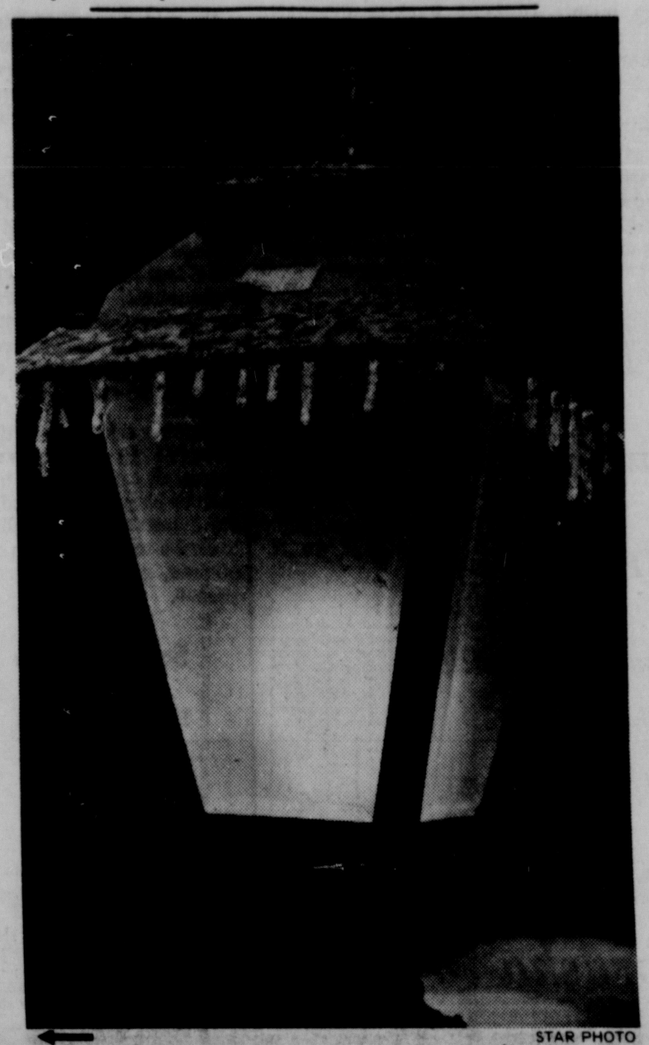

At Falls City most of the moisture came in the form of heavy rain with 1.05 inches in a 12-hour period. Later as temperatures fell there strong winds caused ice-covered tree limbs to fall.

Nebraska City reported 1.11 inches of rain and three inches of snow.

Lincoln received only an inch of snow and .38 of an inch of moisture.

By late Tuesday the storm, covering a big part of the Midwest, moved out of Nebraska. Wednesday's forecast calls for cloudy and cold weather in the Cornhusker state.

Icy Storm Brings Usual Winter Trouble To City

Acting Mayor Helen Boosalis declared a snow emergency on all designated snow routes Tuesday afternoon.

Any motor vehicle which is parked, stalled or stuck on any snow emergency route will be subject to issuance of a ticket by the police department. Violators will be subject to a $25 fine. Additionally, the vehicle will be subject to removal by the police department at the expense of the owner.

The snow emergency will remain in effect until further notice.

Designated snow emergency routes include O, Cornhusker Hwy., Adams, Holdrege, South, Pioneers Blvd., Hwy. 2, Normal Blvd., Cotner Blvd., L, K, 9th and 10th, 16th and 17th, 48th and 70th.

Council Chairwoman Boosalis is acting mayor while Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf is out of the city. Schwartzkopf is attending the National League of Cities Conference in Puerto Rico.

Tuesday's storm, freezing rain followed by snow and combined with winds, had the usual effect of causing accidents, power outages and disconnected telephone lines.

The Lincoln Police Department reported that accidents were running about 300% ahead of the normal rate Tuesday as a result of the storm.

Approximately 90 accidents had been reported since 1:00 a.m. Nearly all were fender benders, but a few minor injury and hit-and-run accidents were also reported.

About 150 houses in west Lincoln were without electrical power for an hour Tuesday morning when a tree fell across a power line at 2609 N.W. 4th, according to a Lincoln Electric System spokesman.

He said that was the only major power outage in the city, although workmen were responding to isolated calls affecting a small number of houses.

Damage to telephone wires within the city limits was "minimal," according to a spokesman for the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph co.

However he said the storm caused 300 wire breaks and 20 broken poles in a rural area on the Lincoln exchange southeast of the city. Fifty rural lines affecting 300 telephones were out of service in that area, he said.

A spokesman for the Norris Public Power District, which serves rural Lancaster County and ten of its towns, said that the storm toppled three poles and caused a large number of broken lines.

He said, however, that the county was "not in too bad of shape" in comparison with other winter storms.

Lincoln air travelers were still able to fly out of the city Tuesday, although poor visibility caused the cancellation of two flights.

A United Airlines spokesman said a noon flight going to Omaha and Des Moines was cancelled. Omaha's Eppley Airfield suspended operations at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday due to the blizzard like weather and strong crosswinds.

A Frontier Airlines spokesman said Lincoln weather was mainly responsible for the cancellation of a noon flight to Denver.

Although the Lincoln Municipal Airport remained open, all runways are icy, Airport Executive Director Rolland Harr reported.

Harr said that even with the "fair" rating of runways due to the storm, air carrier and executive air traffic was moving in and out of Lincoln Tuesday.

Phillips Co. Made Donation Illegally

WASHINGTON (AP) — Phillips Petroleum Co. on Tuesday became the seventh corporation to plead guilty to donating its money illegally to President Nixon's 1972 campaign.

During proceedings in federal court, assistant special prosecutor Thomas McBride said Phillips also has disclosed that it made other illegal donations, totaling $50,000 to $60,000, to a substantial number of congressional and Senate candidates, and he said the recipients are under investigation. McBride didn't name them.

Phillips, which voluntarily admitted the illegal $100,000 Nixon gift several weeks ago, was fined the maximum $5,000.

The company's former chairman William W. Keeler also pleaded guilty to a related charge and was fined the maximum $1,000. He could have received up to a year in jail as well, but U.S. Dist. Judge Howard F. Corcoran imposed no prison term.

A total of seven corporations have admitted making illegal gifts to Nixon. The other six, and five of their executives, pleaded guilty prior to Tuesday. All the corporations were fined $5,000 and the executives $1,000.

It is a federal crime to knowingly receive corporation money for use in a political campaign.

Senators OK Saving Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Tuesday to put the nation on year-round daylight saving time for the next 22 months.

The measure, offered as part of the federal energy conservation program, will allow a state to exempt itself from daylight time during the winter months. A state with two or more time zones could exempt any zone.

The vote was 68 to 10. The House has passed a similar bill, and a conference committee will come up with a compromise of the two versions.

Under the Senate bill, daylight time would become effective on the fourth Sunday after the measure is signed by President Nixon. The House version would become effective within 15 days of enactment. Thus, it seems almost certain that most of the nation will return to daylight time by Dec. 30, with clocks being set forward one hour.

Money Given To Pinewood

. . . For Improvements

A former University of Nebraska chemistry professor has willed up to $200,000 to the city Park Department to spruce up Pinewood Bowl.

Viola C. Jelinek, who taught chemistry at NU from 1935-37, willed the money to the city to construck a memorial honoring her father, Stephen Jelinek. He was an instructor of music at NU.

The announcement was made Tuesday by Director of Parks and Recreation Don Smith and Edward Rada, executor of Miss Jelinek's will. She died Oct. 23 in Santa Monica, Calif.

Smith said the exact amount of money to be spent will depend upon the project, which will be determined by city officials and Rada. The Pinewood Bowl Committee will work with the Parks and Recreation Board and staff members on the project.

The gift, one of the largest ever made to the park department, "kind of left me speechless," Smith remarked.

He explained that Pinewood Bowl has needed renovation, but that other park projects have received higher priority standings in the city budget.

One possible project, he said, is the construction of dressing rooms adjacent to the stage in the amphitheater located in Pioneers Park.

Miss Jelinek, a native of Crete, graduated from Lincoln High School and received her bachelor of science degree in chemistry from the University of Nebraska in 1925. She earned her masters degree in 1927, attended Yale University and taught chemistry at both Norfolk Junior College and NU.

From 1937-42 she did research in textiles for the U.S. Department of Agriculture. And from 1942-63 she was employed as a research chemist for Merc & Co., of Rahway, N.J., Smith said.

She retired in 1964 and moved to California.

Few Academic Programs Merged

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a series of articles by The Star's education and political writers about the now-federated University of Nebraska.)

By MILAN WALL
and DON WALTON
Star Staff Writers

Despite expectations that accompanied creation of the University of Nebraska at Omaha in 1968, the University of Nebraska has few truly merged academic programs spanning the 50 miles between Omaha and Lincoln.

Merk Hobson, NU vice president for academic affairs, points to several teaching programs that cut across campus boundaries: engineering, home economics, pharmacy, dental surgery, law enforcement, social work, special education, nursing.

But Hobson describes only two of those as "merged" in the sense that they are operated as joint ventures from two or more campuses. And those are home economics, implemented this fall, and engineering, which is just 1½ years old.

On the nonacademic side, other NU officials point to a variety of changes they say have stramlined, improved or centralized operations, largely in reponse to consultants' reports on management and accounting.

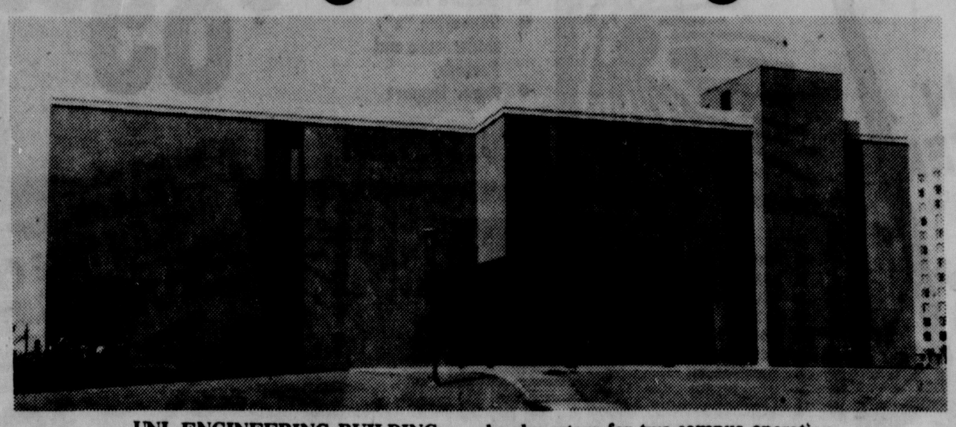

Joint Programs Expected

The decision to make the former University of Omaha part of a multicampus NU System in 1968 brought with it expectation that many academic colleges and departments would join hands across the 50 miles that separate the campuses in Lincoln and Omaha.

A merger steering committee, appointed in January 1968 by Chancellor Clifford Hardin, recommended in mid-1969 that "all similar departments on the three campuses be encouraged to hold regularly scheduled meetings to discuss and make recommendations concerning joint programs . . ."

In December 1969, the Board of Regents said in adopted policy guidelines that "all campus entities . . . should form a coordinated totality with complementary rather than competitive units."

"Unnecessary duplication within the total university is to be avoided," the regents had decreed. "Cooperative programs, adapting the special talents of faculty and staff, as well as specialized facilities on all campuses, are to be encouraged."

Framework Not Used

Yet in mid-1971 the management consulting firm of Cresap, McCormick and Paget had to report that although the regental guidelines "establish an acceptable framework" for governing NU, "knowledge of its existence and hence its use as a guiding document is negligible."

And the firm said the "work of the merger steering committee, while undoubtedly productive in several important areas, has not noticeably resulted in either broad-based coordination and consolidation of existing programs and facilities at the campus level or appreciable improvement of educational quality at reduced cost."

"I believe there was some notion of closer coordination in the early days," NU President D. B. Varner says now, five years after the creation of the confederation of three campuses.

That there is now more evidence of the merged, or at least centralized, idea in business and administrative support programs is a "fair assessment," Varner says.

Centrally coordinated nonacademice programs that involved ambitious change have resulted in one accounting system, a single personnel infor-

Hughes Associate Produces $100,100

Washington (UPI) — An associate of recluse billionaire Howard Hughes opened a brown attache case before the Senate Watergate Committee Tuesday and dumped $100,100 on a table saying "here's the goddamned money."

The money, according to Chester Davis, general counsel for the Hughes-owned Summa Corporation, was the $100,100 President Nixon's close friend Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo returned to Hughes.

Hughes, working through an agent had given Rebozo the money three years earlier as a donation to Nixon's re-election campaign.

Davis appeared in an executive session before the committee. A committee aide told reporters later that Davis had dumped the money out on a table, and that the surprised committee members scrambled to find a Senate sergeant-at-arms to guard the money and record the serial numbers of the bills.

Davis dumped the money out during an argument with committee members about whether he would testify about the transaction in executive session. A dozen Hughes aides have filed suit claiming they are not required by law to testify in executive session and are required to do so only in public.

"The argument got heated, and Davis stood up flipped open the brief case, dumped out the money on the table and said 'here's the goddamned money,' " the aide siad.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., committee chairman, confirmed Davis turned over the $100,100.

Four armed guards were immediately posted outside the room where the committee was meeting.

An aide said when Ervin saw the money, he said, "Wait a minute. I'm not going to touch that money until it's counted."

Israel Expected To Press For Peace Commitment

(c) New York Times News Service

Jerusalem — Israel is expected to press, at the outset of the Israeli-Arab negotiations scheduled to open in Geneva on Dec. 18, for an Arab commitment to conclude a full and formal peace. Senior Israeli officials in Jerusalem indicated that Israel would call for a final renunciation of war by both sides, the establishment of diplomatic relations and the introduction of normal commercial ties among all the states of the area.

Peace 'Not Around Corner'

Washington — Secretary of State Kissinger last month reportedly told Mohammed H. Heykal, the influential editor of the Cairo paper Al Ahram, that peace in the Middle East was "not around the corner" and that it might take six months to a year for concrete results from the Arab-Israeli negotiations that are to begin in Geneva on Dec. 18. Kissinger reportedly stressed that the United States was pledged to protect Israel's security, but said that "we do not believe that our special ties with Israel are irreconcible with the ties of friendship which we wish to maintain and strengthen with you."

Savings Time Bill Is Passed

Washington — The Senate, voting 67 to 10, passed emergency legislation sought by President Nixon to put the nation on year-round daylight savings time for the next two years to help ease the energy shortage. The bill now goes to a Senate-House conference to reconcile the differences with a similar measure passed last week by the House. (More on Page 1.)

Rationing Decision Expected

Washington — William E. Simon, the new boss of the government's energy programs, believes the administration will have to decide whether to ration gasoline by the end of this month. Simon made the prediction at a news conference after the formal announcement of his appointment by President Nixon. (More on Page 1.)

Foundation Being Incorporated

New York — The Foundation for the Humanities and the Arts, the first private foundation devoted solely to the arts and the humanities, is being incorporated by a group of arts patrons and professionals. The multimillion-dollar organization will be headed by W. McNeil Lowry, who has been head vice president of the Ford Foundation's humanities and arts division.

Haldeman Retains Power

Washington — A former aide testified that H. R. Haldeman retained so much power at the White House after his resignation as the White House chief of staff that he was able 6½ months later to monitor the inspection by White House aides of files he had left behind. According to testimony in Federal District Court in Washington, by the former aide, Haldeman did not even reveal until about two weeks ago the combination of the safe that held the files. (Another story on Page 3.)

Steel Firms, Union Negotiating

Washington — Prodded by intensifying governmental legal action, the major steel companies and the Steelworkers' Union are quietly negotiating a historic nationwide program to end racial discrimination in employment practices in the steel industry. The program, which would eliminate seniority along racial lines in steel mills and set goals and timetables for hiring and promoting minority workers, is expected to be announced soon.

Mission To Jupiter '100% Success'

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — Scientists on Tuesday praised Pioneer 10's voyage past Jupiter and said they hoped the spacecraft would transmit data for another five years as it journeys out of the solar system.

"The Pioneer 10 mission by all standards is being written down right now as a 100 per cent success," said Dr. R.S. Kraemer, the head of planetary programs for the National Aeronautics and Space Agency.

Hoping for a stream of data in years ahead, Dr. John Wolfe said, "What we'd really like to do is go to 110 per cent success if possible."

Scientists said they might receive data five years from now when the spacecraft nears the orbit of Uranus about 2 billion miles from earth.

The unmanned space probe survived punishing Jovian radiation storms Monday night and was still sending data to earth.

The quarter-ton voyager was traveling at 35,800 miles an hour, its speed steadily decreasing as it left Jupiter's gravity.

From 300,000 miles beyond Jupiter early Tuesday, Pioneer 10 sent back a dramatic photograph of sunrise showing the planet as a long silver crescent — a view astronomers cannot see from earth.

Dr. Tom Gehrels, an Arizona scientist, said computer-enhanced versions of a photograph taken about 100,000 miles from Jupiter's Great Red Spot promised to be revealing.

He said they might confirm theories that the 15,000-mile wide oval spot on Jupiter's face is a tower of clouds above the rest of the colorful and turbulent atmosphere.

Wolfe said an infrared heat-sensing device aboard the spacecraft had placed the average temperature of Jupiter's cloud tops at minus 208 degrees Fahrenheit. Variations in temperature could be seen, which might be related to differences in Jupiter's cloud structure, he said.

Kraemer said he is confident Pioneer 10 has proven a spacecraft can fly close to the massive planet, survive and then use Jupiter's gravity to fling it toward a rendezvous with other planets, such as Saturn or Uranus.

Angry Truckers Block Highways In 4 States

By Associated Press

Angry truckers used their rigs to block interstate highways in four states for several hours Tuesday, claiming restrictions imposed during the energy shortage are slicing their paychecks.

Some drivers and a trade magazine called for a nationwide truck stoppage.

It was not immediately clear whether the demonstrations in Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and West Virginia were part of a coordinated effort, although some drivers were involved in more than one blockade. The number of drivers involved did not appear to be more than a few hundred.

At a truck stop near Hebron, Ohio, a small town east of Columbus on Interstate 70, about 45 truckers called for an immediate stoppage and broadcast appeals over their citizens band radios, urging other drivers to pull off the road without blocking traffic.

They threatened to begin a new blockade if truckers did not comply with their requests.

The Hebron truckers said drivers at a similar meeting in Bedford, Pa., also were calling for an immediate shutdown of truck traffic without blocking highways.

An attendant at the Hebron truck stop said the parking lot appeared to be filling up faster than usual, indicating some drivers were complying with the request.

Earlier, about 50 drivers at the Hebron meeting voted to support a national shutdown the weekend of Dec. 15-16.

Nader Cites Apathy Caused By Industry

©The New York Times

New York — Ralph Nader declared here Tuesday that consumer apathy — fostered for years by oil and other industries — made it likely that even dramatic increases in fuel prices would get by with relatively little outcry.

"If there was really a competitive economy," he said, "wholesalers and retailers would be fighting the energy suppliers on price," egged on by consumers.

But for years the American consumer has been denied usable, comparative information on products, Nader said, and the longer this has gone on, the less interested the consumer has become in facts.

Nader said he foresaw a time — not too distant — when every industry, like the oil industry, would have an all-purpose alibi to raise prices — shortages. He agreed with a questioner who noted that in general higher prices have been passed along recently without too much protest and said that "a lack of response is a symptom of a weak consumer."

Nader said the economy had been growing largely as a result of 30 or 40 years of technology designed to "maximize waste — to consume fuel and electricity inefficiently." He pointed to "the infermal internal combustion engine," overillumiated skyscrapers, uninsulated homes, inefficient air-conditioners. And, he said, the Nixon administration stresses the sacrifice the consumer must make, but the greatest potential for reducing waste is in industry and commerce, which use 70% of the nation's energy.

Nixon's Net Worth Triples

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's net worth has tripled since he took office and now stands at about $1 million, his lawyers have told Republican congressional leaders.

Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., said Tuesday that the lawyers reported at a White House meeting Monday night that the President's net worth was in "the neighborhood of $300,000" on Jan. 1, 1969, and by last May 31 had risen to about $988,000.

Neither of the figures jibes with previous public statements by Nixon aides on the President's net worth. One White House official said this was because of differences in accounting procedures.

Anderson and others attending the two-hour White House meeting said the lawyers presented a complex cash flow chart and other documents to illustrate Nixon's income and expenditures and show how he legitimately obtained the increase in net worth.

"They made it sound pretty convincing," Anderson said.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said the consensus of those at the session was that "the President had not done anything that was illegal, or irregular, or unethical."

But Tower said there were strong suggestions that the President release his complete tax returns to back up the financial statements and other documents.

Anderson and Tower reported that Nixon's lawyers said they were willing to let a congressional committee review Nixon's controversial half-million-dollar tax deduction for giving his vice-presidential papers to the National Archives.

Tower said the lawyers, Kenneth Gemmill of Philadelphia and H. Chapman Rose of Cleveland, said they were so confident of this and other tax claims by the President that they would invite a court test of the validity of his returns.

Gemmill and Rose, both longtime friends of the President, volunteered several weeks ago to help prepare material intended to refute allegations about Nixon's personal finances.

The material is scheduled for release this week and will include a full audit of Nixon's finances from Jan. 1, 1969, to May 31, 1973, Anderson said.

This audit was done by the New York accounting firm of Coopers & Lybrand and a portion dealing with Nixon's California, and Florida real estate purchases was released in August.

The dates cited for the net worth figures divulged by the lawyers at the White House meeting indicated they had come from the Coopers & Lybrand audit.

When Nixon was campaigning for the White House, his aides reported that as of Sept. 30, 1968, his net worth was $515,830. After his election, May 12, 1969, the White House issued a statement listing his net worth as $596,900.

The next net worth statement was issued by the White House on Sept. 16, 1972, giving a figure of $765,118.

Early in his presidency, Nixon sold his New York apartment for $326,000. This compared with the $166,860 he had paid for it in 1963.

He also sold his stock in a Florida real estate firm for a reported $371,782, about twice the amount he reportedly paid for it over a period of years.

Profits in these transactions would account for a portion of the increase in his net worth. The White House said in its September, 1972, statement that the President's net worth increase is attributable to income from his salary which has been used for improvements to his home or deposited in the bank."

Since that statement, Nixon also has sold two vacant lots in Key Biscayne which the White House said he owned jointly with his daughter, Tricia Nixon Cox.

According to the cash flow statement shown to the White House meeting, Nixon received $89,842 for his share in the transaction.

The cash flow statement also listed him as receiving $128,611 from his New York law firm after he took office, as well as smaller amounts from bank account interest and book royalties.

Tower said that "the tax returns will show his financial affairs were very much in order."

Tower reported that since the May 31 closing date of the audit, Nixon has purchased another $50,000 certificate of deposit from the Key Biscayne bank headed by friend C. G. (Bebe) Rebozo.

This, he said, is in addition to the $250,000 in certificates of deposit he had purchased at the bank before May 31.

Tower and Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott reported on the White House meeting at a Senate Republican policy luncheon on Tuesday. Reaction was mixed, Tower said, with most Republican senators accepting the President's accounting. But, he added, there were "still some doubters."

He indicated most doubts centered on the tax deductions obtained for donation of the vice-presidential papers.

Because of the large tax deduction resulting from the donation, Nixon has paid less than $6,000 in federal income taxes during the past three years, the White House figures show.

The donation has been challenged on grounds that it was not legally completed before July 25, 1969, when the law was changed to deny big tax deductions to individuals who make gifts of papers they have created themselves.

Nixon's lawyers said, according to Anderson, that without the deduction the President would have had to pay about $170,000 more in income taxes between 1969 and 1972.

At a Nov. 17 news conference, Nixon said the Internal Revenue Service had audited his returns and raised no questions about the deduction. "If they do," he added, ". . .I will be glad to have the paper back and I will pay the tax because I think they are worth more than that."

White House Lawyer Can't Explain How Portion Of Tape Was Erased

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House lawyer testified Tuesday that he still cannot explain how 13 minutes of a tape recording was erased.

Samuel J. Powers, a Miami attorney who was brought in to help the White House explain the tape problem in court, was asked how he explained the discrepancy between four to five minutes Presidential Secretary Rose Mary Woods may have accidentally erased and the 18 minutes that actually are gone.

"We couldn't explain it," Powers said with a smile.

Q. Have you gotten any information about the cause of the erasure from anyone other than Miss Woods?

A. No.

J. Fred Buzhardt, another White House counsel, had indicated that the White House believes that the recording button on Miss Woods' machine was pushed down for the entire time, although Miss Woods insisted otherwise.

He, too, said he had no explanation and once thought there was "no innocent" reason.

Earlier Lawrence M. Higby, former aide to H.R. Haldeman, who resigned as White House chief of staff, testified that Haldeman knew portions of the tape had been erased at least one week before U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica was told about it.

"I think he said — and this is only a recollection — that it had been caused by Miss Woods," Higby said.

"When did you learn about the gap," he was asked by acting White House counsel Leonard Garment.

"That afternoon," Powers said.

"At the beginning of listening of that particular tape Buzhardt said we had to listen carefully because there was an erasure of three to four minutes either at the start of the Ehrlichman or Haldeman conversation."

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

One can easily understand the frustration of Councilman Max Denney in connection with existing fuel conservation efforts and his desires to do something about it. He has proposed that the City Council adopt an ordinance or a resolution seeking either mandatory or voluntary closing of businesses on at least one day a week.

Denney said: "I'm very disappointed in the lack of leadership we see from the White House and Congress. Both are failing the citizens in exerting leadership on the problem that appears to be before us."

Giving additional credence to Denney's position is the resignation this week of President Nixon's top energy advisor, John A. Love. Love resigned in the face of unreconcilable differences with others in the administration in regards to solutions to the energy problem.

Love was in favor of gasoline rationing, something the rest of the administration has opposed up to this point. But it is beginning to appear as though the decision against rationing is not based on the merits of the proposal.

Rather, rationing is opposed, for one thing, because it is a hard political decision to make. The American people do not like rationing and the public official who puts it in will incur the wrath of a great many people.

But if rationing is needed, that is the kind of tough decision good leadership makes. Thus, the question of leadership, as Denney suggested it, becomes a pertinent one.

Nor is that all. President Nixon is being dominated in his decision by economic advisors who are arguing for protection of the economy first and a solution to the energy crisis second. Obviously, their theory is that if you let prices of petroleum products go high enough, demand will slack off and there will be no shortage of anything.

If the problem we faced today were more of a long term one this would be a sound position but such is not the case. The shortage is not something we are seeking to avoid; it is already with us.

Thus, what we need is a program to deal with that shortage. The danger in the approach of the President and those who he listens to is that a few special interests could reap fantastic profits out of the situation while many of our people suffered serious hardship.

For the majority of the American people, higher and higher petroleum prices still would not constitute a hardship, although it would be unwelcome and could be a substantial inequity. However, probably as much as a third of the nation, the lower one-third in income, could be dealt a serious setback through skyrocketing fuel prices.

The entire matter could evolve into a situation where the rich got all they wanted and the poor went without. If there is to be hardship as a result of a lack of energy, that burden ought to be shared by all, not just by the economic unfortunates.

Much of this, of course, is still speculation at this point but there is enough on the surface right now to begin to question, as Denney has done, the leadership from the White House and Congress. Congress has mainly proven to date that it has little backbone for hard decisions.

None of this says that Denney is right as to his proposed one day closing or its timing but he is at least showing commendable concern and has struck a popular note. We do not believe there should be business as usual if sacrifices are to be demanded of the general public.

Nor will the public make the sacrifice needed if it sees what it considers to be extravagance in the use of energy in the business community. The City Council, rightfully, took no hasty action in this matter but it needs to stay alert on the subject.

'Did We Guess Wrong Somewhere?'

Teacher Retirement Snafu

Disgust if not outrage might well be the public reaction to news that 1973 legislative improvements to the state teacher retirement system are going to cost substantially more than earlier believed. Even for the current year, a deficit appropriation of $1,560,000 will be required of the 1974 Legislature to meet the financial demands of the retirement program in its first year of change.

Overall, the changes made in 1973 are now figured at a total cost of 40 percent more than original estimates. Part of the reason for this reportedly is that no one considered the status of retired teachers in Omaha.

The situation is certainly an incredible one and one that erodes public confidence in our state system of government. The situation has nothing to do with the merits of the changes made in the retirement program but simply relates to the matter of intelligent decision making on the part of lawmakers.

The plain fact is that the Legislature should not be passing bills about which it obviously knows so little. When a bill is passed it should have been thoroughly examined for all its repercussions and, certainly, its costs. In this case, state senators apparently approved the measure without really knowing what it would do.

This is not the kind of thing for which senators are elected. Additionally, the situation tends to bear out criticism of the legislative system as it now exists.

No doubt contributing to something such as this is the fact that the Legislature receives far too many bills in every session. Too many senators are not giving serious thought to what they introduce, but rather, are submitting bills simply to placate some interest group.

Also, one might assume from what has happened that more research help is needed by the lawmaking body. It would not have been difficult to have an accurate cost analysis of the teacher retirement program changes had there been the physical capacity to get it done.

Senators need a stronger sense of personal responsibility and need to improve the system in which they are expected to work.

Decline Of The Big Car

The meaning of the energy crisis will be brought home with full force this December to some 137,000 American and Canadian families.

That many autoworkers in the two nations will be laid off this month because of a cutback in the production of slow-selling big cars.

The eclipse of the luxury car as a status symbol for the rich, poor and middle-income alike might have happened at some time in the future anyway; but it was certainly hurried along by the new emphasis on fuel conservation which has caused a boom in economy car sales.

"Did we guess wrong somewhere?" one automaker asks another in the editorial cartoon on this page today. It isn't an easily answered question. The automakers might say that they only produced what the consumer wanted, that's the American way. The consumer might answer that responsible industrialists wouldn't have tempted so many people to splurge on an item of which the base retail price is only a modest downpayment on the total costs over the life of the vehicle.

The story of the big car and its current plight exemplify the mindless exploitation of resources and income in which Americans have engaged in this and so many other areas.

The death of the big car, if that is its fate, will be a team effort.

That is not a satisfactory explanation for those autoworkers who will be jobless this Christmas. They'll probably have to learn to live with it, though. They and hundreds of thousands of other workers and businessmen who may fall as the seeds of an extravagant life-style are harvested.

Private Life Target For Credit Sleuths

WASHINGTON — Snooping has become a major, if pernicious, industry in America. Each year, an estimated 100 million Americans are spied upon by credit sleuths, who constantly pry into the financial status, sex habits, personal friendships and other private affairs of ordinary citizens.

The findings are often used to destroy reputations. People have been blacklisted by banks because of their appearance, housekeeping, driving habits and sexual conduct.

Yet the Senate has quietly buried a bill which would have dealt a blow to private prying. The bill would have given the victims the right to inspect their credit reports. It also would have required their prior consent before their neighbors could be asked specific questions.

But the banking, insurance and other industries, which employ the snoops, put on the pressure. Senators John Sparkman, D-Ala., Wallace Bennett, R-Utah, William Brock, R-Tenn., and Edward Brooke, R-Mass., teamed up against Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and William Hathaway, D-Maine, to sidetrack the bill in a Senate subcommittee.

Meanwhile, credit applicants continue to be turned down without being told why. We have obtained copies of confidential credit reports, which reveal that loan applications can be rejected for the most trivial reasons.

One applicant had trouble getting financing, for example, because "he got an infection in his right foot, causing his Big Toe and Little Toe to swell and peel; these were seen, and they present an infected, swollen appearance . . ."

Other grounds cited in the confidential reports are "slothful housekeeping," "poorly groomed" and even — heaven forbid — "defamatory in speaking of insurance companies."

But the credit snoops seem to have a prurient interest in what goes on in the bedrooms. One credit report on an insurance applicant states that "she is promiscuous in her actions due to the fact she has a child born out of wedlock and she is seen entertaining male companions on the beds in her apartment."

A private eye, tattling on another victim, placed forever in her record: "We did find some criticism of morals. She has one illegitimate child . . . She dates often."

Another scandal seeker reports triumphantly: "Your insured admits that she is single, never married. She also admits that she and a man friend live together out of wedlock."

The insurance and credit industries insist such sexual gossip appears only rarely in credit reports, but we found titillating tidbits in case after case. In a future column, we will give examples of mistaken identity and other outrages that have cost applicants their credit ratings and reputations.

Footnote: Under the present law, applicants are entitled to verbal reports on their credit ratings. But the law is riddled with loopholes.

The Way The Old Are Treated

CHICAGO — Mrs. Mary Horinek recently received a letter from a collection agency, the Sterling Account Services Inc., of suburban Glenview.

It didn't begin with a Dear Mrs. Horinek, or a Dear Mary.

Instead, it was headed: Re: MacNeal Hospital vs. Mary Horinek. Amount: $50.60.

After that opening, it got right to the point:

"We seriously recommend you read every word of this letter so that you will not later say, 'I Did Not Realize This Could Happen To Me.'

"Since we demanded payment of you several times, it is difficult for us to understand why you have not paid this balance.

"What happens in our office when a debtor does not pay the balance due?

"We recommend to the creditor that legal action be initiated immediately. The attorney is selected and suit usually filed within 24 hours.

"After this has happened, the debtor's first impulse often is to immediately contact the creditor of this office stating that he wasn't given an adequate opportunity to pay the obligation or he didn't realize how serious the situation was.

"Sometimes this is too late — judgment has already been entered, his wages tied up and bank account garnished.

"The attorney may, in addition, order the sheriff to pick up the debtor's automobiles and all other non-exempt property so that they may be sold and the proceeds, after deducting the costs of the sale, be applied toward satisfaction of the judgment.

"A judgment lien against debtor's real estate may be filed and levied upon forcing the sale of debtor's home to satisfy the judgment.

"Such legal action is expensive as court costs along with interest as allowed by law is added to the amount due from the debtor.

"In addition, the debtor is liable for sheriff fees.

"Without any promise to do so, we plan to withhold action for four days so you may have the opportunity to pay the amount due to us. Self-interest dictates that you give this your immediate attention."

And how did Mrs. Horinek react to the warning that the sheriff might soon seize her automobile; that her home might be sold out from under her; that her wages would be tied up and her bank accounts garnished; that she would have to pay court costs and sheriff's fees?

It didn't faze her a bit.

Mrs. Horinek is a very old lady in a nursing home. Because of senility. She really doesn't understand what the letter is all about. A court has certified she is incompetent.

She barely remembers what the overdue bill, for $50.60, is for. She does recall slipping on the stairs in her home last summer and going to MacNeal Hospital to have them look at her leg. And she says they put some kind of bandage on it and that it wasn't hurt badly.

Beyond that, though, she's not sure. It was a minor incident compared with everything else that happened to her. A month before her leg injury, her husband died.

Then she entered a hospital for extensive tests because she was having trouble thinking clearly. After they found that she was senile, she was put in the nursing home.

So the letters from the collection agency meant nothing to her.

Fortunately, Mrs. Horinek has an old friend, Frank Deml, 68, and he saw the letter and is going to pay the bill. That way the credit agency won't send the sheriff's troops into Mary's nursing home to seize her slippers and sell them off.

But Mr. Deml, a real estate man, is pretty damn mad about the tone of the letter, and I agree with him.

It isn't as if they are trying to collect from a deadbeat who splurged on jewelry or big cars.

People who run up bills, even small ones, at hospitals are buying an essential service.

And before a hospital starts tossing its overdue bills to a hard-nosed collection agency, they might take a look at the circumstances of the people about to be dunned, threatened and intimidated.

But it is all part of the way the old are treated in this country.

To have decent care, Mrs. Horinek must use her savings to pay a nursing home. Fortunately her frugal husband left her enough so that she can stay there a few years.

And because she hurt her leg and is senile, she winds up being barked at by a collection agency.

When a horse hurts its leg, they shoot it. But at least they feel bad about doing it.

Gasless Sunday Enough?

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Being on the highways during the first "Gasless Sunday" was an odd experience. Virutally everyone seemed to be observing the new gas-saving speed limits — 55 m.p.h. in North Carolina — and service stations were closed as bidden, with few exceptions. But surely these relatively easy measures are not going to be enough, if this crisis is as real as advertised.

A fuel shortage is a serious matter anywhere, but in cities that have come to be absolutely dependent on the automobile, it could become catastrophe. It is not just that, here in Charlotte as elsewhere, mass transit facilities are minimal; in addition, this city has been built outward from its own center in long glittering strings of plastic, neon, glass and ersatz. Now, for miles before a motorist reaches what used to be the city, the shopping centers, the fast-food joints, the service stations, the apartment and housing developments, the glass office buildings and the ugly mobile home sales lots line the roads in endless tribute to an illusory prosperity.

What happens to the motels, the sprawling cut-rate department stores, the seafood restaurants built to look like tugboats, the chain taco parlors and the one-stop auto service centers if potential customers have no gas with which to drive to their sprawling parking lots?

"I tell you," a service station operator said at a stop along U.S. 74, "This gas situation is getting serious. Lot of people going to have to go out of business." Even after having been closed all day Sunday, he had only a limited supply of high-test gas — no regular — for sale.

Even the auto rental agencies are not necessarily providing full tanks of gas any more; at the Raleigh-Durham Airport on "Gasless Sunday" one agency could not offer a car with more than three-quarters of a tank of gas, and most had half a tank or less. With the service stations closed, a potential renter had to calculate carefully whether he could get where he wanted to go on the gas that would come with his car.

Hardware stores hereabouts report electric heaters in short supply, since they're being bought up by people who calculate that electricity will be more plentiful than heating oil; and those with fireplaces — plentiful in the south, where central heating is a relatively recent luxury — are stocking coal and firewood.

None of this is particularly unpleasant; it's a good change to drift along a highway at more lesiurely speeds, with increased opportunity to see the countryside. There's no doubt lower speed limits will reduce the horrifying highway death toll; and most American houses and business buildings have been kept too hot, anyway, for comfort or good health. Maybe the energy shortage really will help revive mass transit and inter-city rail lines and the central city, as well as shake Americans out of the illusion that economic growth can go on forever snowballing into a limitless future.

But already questions are being asked, even by people who're willing to throttle back to 55 m.p.h., and take a walk instead of a ride on Sunday. Why did the oil companies fight imports for so long? And aren't they still exporting American oil? Who's making money out of this crisis (since Americans know someone makes money out of every crisis)?

If the Arabs and the Israelis make a peace, will that end the crisis? Aren't the causes deeper and more fundamental than that? If they are, why wasn't the crunch foreseen months and even years ago, long before President Sadat ordered his troops across Suez? Why is the administration just now coming to grips with a crisis about which there appears to have been ample warning? And aren't most of the remedies so far proposed coming out of the pocketbooks and comforts of consumers, rather than of the big energy interests? Are consumers all that much to blame?

These questions are being asked more in curiosity than in anger, as it now appears, but that could change, and quickly. When the crisis begins to pinch economically — when the strip-zoned mobility businesses along all the Route 74s into all the swelling Charlottes find their endless parking lots empty of gas-guzzling monsters, when the housewives have to leave their station wagons in their two-car garages and take an overcrowded bus down to the shabby old center city shopping districts, when the layoffs spread from the airline pilots and hostesses to the service station operators and the fast-food waiters and the discount house shipping clerks — when the energy crisis strikes at the livelihood of the ordinary American business and worker and family, the mood is not likely to be as cheerful and cooperative as it is now.

After all, if Richard Nixon doesn't even want to impose gas rationing, lets his energy czar resign on that issue, and keeps dropping hints that the crisis may soon be over, why should the American people — consumers, drivers and wage-earners, as most of them are — comport themselves as if it were World War II again? Should they be expected to make a purely patriotic response to what might soon appear as political bungling and economic plunder?

For now, slower speeds, scarce gas and lower temperatures are not too annoying. But no one likes to be the goat for somebody else's blunder or the pigeon for somebody else's profit, a point Nixon's tardy planners had better keep in mind.

ANTHONY LEWIS

The Darwinian Nightmare

BOSTON — A main theme in the rhetoric of the energy crisis is the need for American selfsufficiency. That is the goal of President Nixon's Project Independence — to insure, as he put it, that by 1980 "Americans will not have to rely on any source of energy beyond our own."

Selfreliance is generally an admirable trait. But in discussion of world resources and energy is can have disturbing overtones. It sounds a little too much like the economic nationalism of the 1930s, with its disastrous influence toward international tension and war.

If we think past the present concerns with scarce heating oil and closed gasoline stations, we recognize that the long-term energy problem poses a profound threat to our whole system of international relations, economic and political. It could break down the network of trade that has been one of the world's great postwar achievements and bring on atavistic attitudes of hoarding, plunder and economic warfare.

Stuart Hampshire, the Oxford philospher, has put in a few words what it is we fear. The successive crises over wheat and oil, he said, suggest that "we are entering a period of intense, nervous competition for scarce resources among countries and alliances, a period in which every group of countries anticipates that the weak will be cut off from the diminishing resources necessary to survival. Each group therefore grabs: A Darwinian nightmare."

The Arabs' use of oil as a crude political weapon gives us a taste of the barbarous world we could find ourselves in.

In terms of America's energy goals, "selfsufficiency" can imply two very different things. It can mean an inward-looking, selfish program designed to continue an extraordinarily wasteful style of life, regardless of international consequences. Or it can mean an attempt to adjust American's profligate use of energy and other resources to the realistic necessities of international peace and order.

President Nixon has made it clear that he sees restraint and conservation in the use of energy as only temporary requirements for Americans. By 1980, he said, "we will once again have those plentiful supplies of inexpensive energy which helped to build the greatest industrial nation."

It is hard to find any qualified expert who thinks the United States can recapture the age of cheap energy, by 1980 or any other foreseeable date. But even setting the goal would have large consequences.

It would be a commitment to continue the energy-intensive direction of our society, doubling our consumption of energy every 15 or 20 years. It would be a signal to ordinary citizens to go on expecting a life of limitless energy — and to create demands based on that expectation.

To follow that path would mean immense capital investment in new energy sources. It would mean accepting severe environmental damage and, in the short run, serious risks from proliferating nuclear fission generating plants.

But the more profound implications are for America's relations with the rest of the world. With 6 per cent of the world's population, we now use 30 per cent of its energy. To continue on that road in an age of declining resources and technological strain — to persist in the dream of two large cars in every garage when our friends fear paralysis of their societies — can only alienate us from the rest of mankind. Indeed, the vision must be of a Fortress America.

The idea of withdrawing into a fortress will always appeal to some. But it is not only wrong morally — because so much of the world, developed and underdeveloped, depends on economic relationships with the United States. It is also wrong as a matter of self-interest. We learned in the 1930s that no country can wall out the rest of the world's economic distress. And even the richest country may be endangered if distress sets loose violence.

There is one real alternative to the vision of limitless energy and luxury as our credo. That is the ethic of conservation. Not savings by such marginal notions as turning down home thermostats but conservation through fundamental social choices, requiring changes in values.

The symbols of necessary change are at hand. To take just one, does it make sense for the United States to go on now with an enormous highway-building program?

Changing our attitudes toward energy use will be a long and complicated process, raising tough problems of how such decisions should be made in a capitalist democracy. But there is only one way to begin: by leadership. That means politicians who do not give us empty promises of plenty but teach us the necessity of living a more frugal and rational life, as part of a world community sharing its resources. That is the only way to dispel the Darwinian nightmare.

Nixon Told 1980 Goal A Dream

©The New York Times

Washington — Dixy Lee Ray, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, has told President Nixon that even with a five-year, $10 billion research and development effort, the United States is unlikely to attain his goal of energy self-sufficiency by 1980.

Such a research effort, Dr. Ray said in a report she handed to Nixon at the White House, would trim the country's need for imported oil to six million barrels a day in 1980. That would be half the level that industry economists have anticipated and just equal to the rate at which the United States was consuming foreign crude oil and refinery products when Arab producers imposed their embargo in October.

The report was not made public but information on its contents was made available by informed sources on Capitol Hill and elsewhere.

With the research program she outlined, Dr. Ray said, energy self-sufficiency could not reasonably be expected until 1985 at the earliest.

Other commentators have criticized Nixon's "Project Independence 1980" slogan, which he has been reiterating lately with evangelical zeal, as implying a shift towards autarkic policies that would cast consumers too much and possibly impair U.S. trade relations with other countries. The critics have said, for example, that the United States should not regard oil supplies from Canada and Venezuela as unstable as Arab supplies have proven to be.

Informed sources said the report represented a personal response by Dr. Ray, not by the five-member commission, to a June 29 request Nixon made of "the chairman," rather than the agency. The report will now go for evaluation to the Office of Management and Budget, which is preparing the President's budget for fiscal 1975, which starts next July 1.

Dr. Ray's outline contemplates that more than half the total, $5.54 billion, would be spent on nuclear power, including $1.45 billion for development of a commercially practical process for harnessing the energy of nuclear fusion.

Nuclear fusion was listed under "renewable resources." Congressional sources speculated that the reason was to avoid showing nuclear power as accounting for more than half the budget. Another explanation, from a source close to the AEC, was that the fuel for fusion is deuterium, or heavy hydrogen, which occurs naturally in sea water and is so abundant that "it's an eternity of fuel."

The emphasis on nuclear power was regarded as in keeping with Nixon's oft-expressed belief that this energy source would be crucial in coming years and in keeping with his plan to create a proposed energy research and development administration around research elements of the AEC.

Dr. Ray also projected what she believed to be $22.5 billion of necessary private-sector investments in research to supplement the federal outlays. How such outlays might be assured was not clear.

The five-year plan contemplated $86 million for solar energy, a figure one analyst described as "a continuation of present budgetary levels," and $185 million for geothermal energy, which this year is budgeted at $11 million.

Way To Double Oil's Value Eyed

(c) Newhouse News Service

Washington — Did some of that expensive "foreign oil" coming into the United States actually come out of wells in this country in the first place?

Some members of Congress think so. At their request, the General Accounting Office is looking into suspicions that oil profiteers have found a way to out-maneuver Cost of Living Council restrictions on the price of domestic oil.

The scenario: A foreign flag tanker fills up at a U.S. port with crude oil, or finished petroleum products, and sails for Europe. At sea, title to the oil is transferred to foreign ownership. Then, in mid-Atlantic, the ship is turned around and heads back to a different U.S. port where the oil is unloaded and sold as imported petroleum at soaring free market prices.

"This swindle doubles the value of the oil," said one congressional source. He said the procedure was described to him by the chief executives of two oil companies who claimed they don't engage in it but that others do.

Federal authorities say the U.S. exports relatively little petroleum through legal channels — about 248,000 barrels daily compared with imports of seven million barrels daily, according to Winfield Chamberlain, assistant director of the Commerce Department's Office of Energy Programs.

"If it exists at all, this practice exists on a small scale," Chamberlain speculated.

Chamberlain said the practice would violate not only the COLC recommendations, but also the Jones Act which prohibits port-to-port shipping in the U.S. by any but U.S.-flag ships.

GAO officials aren't any more certain about the allegation. One GAO official said the agency, which is Congress' accounting arm, is hampered in investigating the subject by lack of authority to compel oil companies to open their books.

"We have to depend on what they tell us they are doing," the official said.

The GAO began its investigation — the Interior Department also reportedly is investigating — at the request of Rep. Lester L. Wolff, D-N.Y.

In a letter to Comptroller-General Elmer Staats earlier this month, Wolff said:

"From many sources both within and outside the oil industry, charges have been made that the oil companies are shipping oil or oil products from the United States to countries abroad and back for sale in this country with the purpose of avoiding the Cost of Living Council's regulations on domestic oil and taking advantage of the lack of controls on imports."

Wolff's concern is echoed by Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., who said his staff is investigating "reports that American oil companies are sending products overseas for a relabeling process so the American companies can bring their products back into the U.S. as imports."

Hartke is sponsoring legislation to restrict the export of energy producing commodities. Similar legislation has been introduced in the House despite Commerce Department insistence that U.S. petroleum exports are not contributing in any consequential way to the shortage of heating oil and gasoline.

A spokesman for the Independent Petroleum Association of America, representing numerous domestic producers, said it was unlikely that any U.S. firms are engaging in the shipping subterfuge, but that foreign companies might.

"With U.S. oil selling at an average controlled price of $4.10 per barrel, and foreign crude, say Tunisian oil, bringing $12 to the barrel, plus another $4 for transportation, it's the sort of thing that could happen," said Lloyd Unsell, of the IPAA. "I don't think any domestic producers are involved but I wouldn't be astonished if some foreign operators were doing it."

Postal Diesel Fuel Allocation Reduced

Washington (UPI) — The federal government said Tuesday it has decided to cut back by 1.7 million gallons — about 11% — the amount of diesel fuel requested by the U. S. Postal Service to deliver mail during the Christmas season.

"I don't think they will deliver mail as fast as last year," said Eli T. Reich, director of the Office of Petroleum Allocation.

Reich's announcement came one day after Postmaster General Elmer T. Klassen said he expected that the large volume of mail in December, about 600 million pieces a day, would be delivered on time, despite the energy situation.

The total mail volume in December is twice the normal flow.

Reich said the OPA had rejected a Postal Service request that it be given the same fuel priority as police and fire departments and other emergency services.

"We wondered about the essentiality of the Postal Service as compared with these other services such as police and fire," Reich said in a speech. "We decided it really wasn't that important . . ."

Reich said the Postal Service would receive the same amount of diesel fuel this month as it used last December — about 13.3 million gallons. Klassen has said he had been assured of 15 million gallons for December, which is one third of the 45 million gallons of gasoline and diesel fuel needed this month to operate all 224,000 vehicles owned by the Postal Service and its contractors.

A postal Service spokesman said that by making sure all trucks are fully loaded, the service might be able to get by on the fuel allotment without holding up mail deliveries.

In other energy developments Tuesday:

—Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., said the administration is considering an excess-use tax on Americans who do not cut their natural gas and electricity consumption by at least 15%.

—Lee C. White, chairman of the Consumer Federation of America's energy policy task force, said nearly every organized consumer group in the country has urged the administration to plan immediate gasoline rationing.

—Critics said that oil and airline industries are making windfall profits from the energy crisis but the industries replied that is not accurate in view of other factors.

—Rep. Wiley Mayne, R-Iowa, warned that consumers will pay dearly next year unless farmers get a top priority in allocating fuel supplies.

—Only one of 11 Cabinet officers — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger — is still using a limousine. The rest are using smaller chauffeur-driven cars.

Oil Firms Reducing Crude Output–Aspin

Washington (UPI) — The oil companies have allowed crude oil production to drop in recent weeks despite a worsening shortage, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., contended Tuesday.

Aspin cited statistics compiled by the American Petroleum Institute which show that production has declined by 217,000 barrels per day in the last month.

He explained in a statement that crude oil production in his country has declined in recent years but that the reduction has accelerated since the shortage developed.

He said the decrease "raises new questions about the sincerity and willingness" of the oil companies to end the shortage and called for an "immediate public explanation."

"During a shortage the oil companies should be increasing crude oil production — not cutting it," he said.

"Instead, the decline in production is accelerating — deepening the shortage which borders on economic catastrophe."

He said during the last year an average four-week survey of crude oil production disclosed a 360,000 barrels per day decline.

In the past four weeks, he said, domestic production dropped from 9.3 million to about 9.09 million barrels per day.

He reminded industry executives that their own reports indicate production would be increased by more than 1 million barrels per day. Additionally, he said former White House energy adviser John Love told a recent news conference that production could be raised 350,000 barrels per day.

United Fund Passes $1.3 Million Goal

The Lincoln-Lancaster United Fund leadership announced the successful completion of this year's community appeal with the $1,285,975 goal surpassed. General Campaign Chairman Walter E. Nolte reported that pledges totaling $1,300,011 have been received to date. This represents an increase of $98,298 over last year's campaign.

"This is the largest dollar increase since the Red Cross and Community Chest combined their drives in 1953," Nolte said. "The volunteers and contributors should take great pride in this community achievement."

Nolte credited a part of the success to the creation of the new division, Impact '74, composed of 60 firms which contributed $55,663 this year resulting in a 55% increase over last year. "The Government and Education Divisions each set a landmark by surpassing the $100,000 mark this year," Nolte said. "Many individual contributors and employe groups responded very generously to this year's appeal," Nolte added.

Lincoln Community Services President Leo Beck cited chairman Nolte and campaign director Lynn Roper for their dedicated service in this year's campaign. "1973 marks our 50th campaign year, and this success illustrates the continuing support of our community for the human care services these funds will provide," Beck said.

Although the goal has been surpassed, Nolte said several volunteers were still working. Nolte cited the following division leaders for their outstanding efforts:

Chuck Burmeister, special gifts: $162,658.

Jim Penn, Impact '74: $55,663.

Leo Scherer, government: $105,534.

Mrs. Kenneth McCaw, neighborhood: $16,777.

Dr. Anne Campbell, education: $101,669.

Goodyear Gives Colleges $3,000

The Nebraska Independent College Foundation Inc. has received a $3,000 award from the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. Fund, a nonprofit corporation supported by Goodyear.

Fund Chairman Russell DeYoung said the award is intended to foster continued training of college students in Nebraska, many of whom have joined the Goodyear organization.

The gift, presented by Lincoln Goodyear Plant Manager D. R. Remigio, is part of the fund's current $500,000 aid-to-education program of direct grants-in-aid to state foundations of independent colleges.

Study: No-Fault Insurance Could Cut Rates Sharply

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., Tuesday made public a new government study on no-fault insurance which he said showed that the 50 states could achieve significant savings in individual automobile insurance premiums.

Magnuson, testifying before the Senate Judiciary Committee which is considering no-fault legislation, said the results of the transportation department cost study were "dramatic."

"The study shows that in enacting a plan in compliance with the standards" of the proposed legislation "every state could produce significant savings in the average personal injury insurance premium," he said.

The Commerce Committee, which Magnuson chairs, approved the bill last August and the Judiciary Committee is considering it with a Feb. 15, 1974, deadline for reporting back to the Senate.

If each of the states fully adopted the national no-fault auto insurance standards contained in the bill, the study found each of them would achieve savings in premiums ranging from 3% in South Carolina to 28% in California and New Jersey.

Lincoln Artists Given Prizes

Two Lincoln artists have been awarded purchase prizes at a member's preview of the Sioux City (Iowa) Art Center's 35th annual fall show, a competitive exhibition of more than 300 prints, drawings and sculpture by artists in Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Minnesota.

Bond $400,000 Each For Accused Killers

ROCK RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — Bond for the three brothers accused of the shotgun slayings of four Sioux Falls, S.D, teenagers was set at $400,000 apiece Tuesday by U.S. Magistrate L. P. Baker.

About 50 people jammed the Lyon County Courthouse for the arraignments of the Fryer brothers of Sioux Falls. Baker ordered bonds of $100,000 on each of the four murder counts facing Allen Fryer, 29, David, 24, and James, 21.

The magistrate also set a pretrial hearing for all three Dec. 28 in Rock Rapids.

Lyon County Sheriff Craig Vinson confirmed Tuesday that marijuana probably was involved in the motive for the killings. Vinson said reports were "essentially true" that the suspects apparently were after marijuana.

The teen-agers were found Nov. 18 in Gitchie Manitou State Park, in northwest Iowa about 10 miles southeast of Sioux Falls. Two were shot in the back, one in the head and one in the chest.

The brothers were arrested without resistance at their three homes in the Sioux Falls area last Thursday. They waived extradition to Iowa Friday.

All three appeared at the arraignments, handcuffed and in prison coveralls. James, serving the balance of a 90-day sentence in Sioux Falls for attempted grand larceny, was accompanied by Minnehaha County, S.D., Sheriff Gene Gruhlke. The other two were being held at the Lyon County Jail in Rock Rapids.

Attorneys appointed by Baker to represent the brothers were Donald DeWaay of Rock Rapids for Allen, James C. Ladegaard of Spirit Lake for David and Earl T. Clay of Orange City for James.

Bond review hearing for the men was set for Friday.

93,300 Color TVs Hazardous

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission said Tuesday that it has received notification from manufacturers of potential shock or fire hazards in 93,300 color television sets.

The commissin said it has been notified of possible shock hazards in 5,000 17-inch RCA sets, 4,300 13-inch Admirals and 52,000 23-inch Montgomery Wards, and possible fire hazards in 23,000 19-inch Zeniths and 9,000 18-inch Philco-Fords.

County Asks Prices For Snow Removal

Lancaster County commissioners Tuesday agreed to take quotations from local contractors for snow removal on county-owned property.

Board Chairman Robert Colin said that the quotations from the firm which has done snow removal for the county in the past are up considerably and indicated that it might be wise to take quotations from various contractors before making an agreement for this year's snow removal.

The commissioners also urged that the public turn out next week for the public hearing regarding the continuation of the office of the county superintendent of schools.

Commissioner Jan Gauger said that she hopes the public realizes the importance of this hearing and that it is not necessarily to solve a space problem within the County-City Building or to do away from the office but rather to get reaction from the public as to what its wishes are regarding the office under provisions of recent legislation.

In other action, the commissioners set Dec. 11 for public hearing on the application of Outpost Tavern for Sunday off-sale beer.

In other business, the board:

—Approved the emergency resolution regarding county bridge repairs needed as a result of fall flooding.

—Approved a resolution directing the county engineer to make a recommendation on the proposed vacation of Sherman St.

—Approved contract with Dobson Bros. for paving south parking lot.

Plane's Engine Catches Fire; Damage Is High

Preliminary estimates of damage were placed at $8,000 to $10,000 according to the Fire Department.

The plane, owned by Carrol Dorn of Kansas City, was used to haul mail between Kansas City, Grand Island and Lincoln.

Cause of the fire may have been the ignition of gas when the plane backfired, according to the fire department.

NU Engineering 'Most Merged'

Payroll Cited

The gains, in terms of monetary savings, are "most dramatic" in payroll, says Glenn Smith, acting vice president for administration.

Once, he notes, each campus adminstration had its own computer and literally hundreds of payroll-related computer and literally hundreds of payroll-related computer programs existed. Now there are no more than 35 programs doing the same work, all run through one computer.

"It has eliminated confusion," says Smith, "and been most helpful as academic programs have been transferred" between campuses, as in engineering and pharmacy.

The engineering merger, invisioned far in advance of its summer 1972 implementation, is often cited as the most thoroughly coordinated of inter-campus academic programs.

Dean In Lincoln

A dean on the Lincoln campus heads the program, while an associate dean in Omaha administers the University of Nebraska at Omaha based courses. College committees include faculty members and administrators from both campuses.

Problems do remain, but Dean George Hanna says they're mostly small ones now, compared with the major hurdles that existed a few months ago.

Home Economics, now one college spanning the 50 miles, was merged only this fall. But over the five years, pharmacy was transferred from Lincoln to the Medical Center in Omaha, social work was moved to UNO. Law enforcement courses, administered from UNO, are offered in Lincoln.

At one time, a three-campus graduate prgram in psychology was envisioned. But that didn't materialize, and now cooperation consists of UNO and Medical Center representation on the graduate committee of the Lincoln campus department.

The entire graduate program, specifically as it relates to Ph.D. degrees, is one which ahas come full circle during the confederation years.

Single Faculty Ordered

The 1969 regents' guidelines said "graduate instruction at the doctoral level shall be the Federation

O.U. MERGER - YES!

responsibility of a single graduate faculty, with an executive dean of graduate education presiding."

In 1971 the management consultants urged decentralizing graduate education, dissolving the dean's position and assigning administration to the campuses. Varner's response was a flat rejection of that recommendation.

Earlier this year, however, he changed his mind and, although a central coordinating council remains, the consultant-recommended decentralization has been implemented.

"I had a growing concern that graduate education was falling into a no-man's land," says Varner. "The (NU) system was responsible but the resources were on the campuses.

"We placed the responsibility for strengthening under the chancellors, but left coordination and quality monitoring at the system level."

Not Displeased

Despite the ups and downs, Varner is not now displeased with the several academic programs he calls "consolidated."

They were accomplished "not without some little strife," he notes. Yet he says "these changes occurred with less turmoil than I would've guessed.

"The faculty has been very cooperative," says Varner.

Hobson, who views "my role as an adviser" to academic officers on the campuses, says he's seen "substantial progress in getting thewe three semi-autonomous campuses to work in a cooperative way.

"I'm encouraged," Hobson concludes. "It hasn't been without some trauma. But we have a stronger institution as a result."

Varner, who says he has no personal "backlog of things" yet to be done, still hopes new inter-campus efforts will suface from the faculties and among the campuses.

"I hope as the days go by, more cooperative programs will emerge," he said, "not because of this office but because of a sense of gain in them."

"The greatest accomplishment has been to get over the hurdle, to build a base of mutual confidence and respect."

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Wednesday

Best-selling author Jess Stearn, who is skillful at guessing zodiacal signs by looking at an individual, tells me that he finds the most difficult sign to be accurately chosen is Aquarius. "I can get the other signs," says Taurus-born Stearn, "but Aquarius usually stumps me." Stearn adds, "The only hint I can offer is that if the person seems to like people, then I take a chance and say, 'Aquarius.'" According to our author-expert, that usually rings the bell. How are you when it comes to correctly identifying the signs? How do you score when you play our astrology game? Let me know!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Talk over financial affairs with one close to you. You have opportunity to consolidate efforts. Cycle is such that your judgment, timing are apt to be on target. Cancer, Capricorn and Scorpio persons could figure prominently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You gain access to opinions which in past have been withheld. You have wider choice. You become better informed. Sagittarius, Gemini persons could play significant roles. Accent is on what goes on behind closed doors.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Emphasis is on steering clear of disputes among friends. Don't get involved — on one side or the other. If you are not careful, you might find yourself in the middle of a lovers' quarrel. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio persons could be featured.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Stick to the basics. Review fundamentals. Make changes based on valid information, not allegations. One who talks a great game probably doesn't know the rules. Don't feel the grass is necessarily greener elsewhere.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Adjustment at home is indicated. Family member makes known some sharp views, opinions. Be receptive. Don't permit pride to create major dilemma. If diplomatic, you eventually get your way. Take long-range sighting.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Spotlight is on financing, investing, paying and collecting. One who talks money, handles policies and checks leases is very much in picture. See in light of reality. Collateral is featured. Protect self. Plug legal loopholes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Obtain hint from Virgo message. Be aware of money and how it gets that way. Interest rates now could be of paramount importance. Older individual could give benefit of experience if you are receptive. Capricorn person might figure in important way.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Much may be obscured — but this should not deter you from taking definite step forward. Trying to hang on to past will not lead to security. Move ahead. Get rid of concept which keeps you chasing rainbow — and losing proposition.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Creative forces coalesce. You gain sense of direction. You are also able to do something about getting to where you want to go. Highlight individuality. Imprint your own style. Be independent, original. Member of opposite sex is involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19): Home, property, responsibility and results of professional endeavors are spotlighted. You are asked to make decision. The requirement is understanding and maturity. Don't skip essentials. Shortcut will not suffice.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb 18): Hold off on short journeys. Take special precautions in traffic. Don't be too serious in reaction to statements by relatives, neighbors. Forces tend to be scattered and confusion could have field day. Be calm in the midst of sound and fury.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Funds may be blocked. Check legal procedures. What you feel is a setback could boomerang in your favor. Minor points should not be overlooked. One who appears slow is actually working at a steady pace, in your behalf.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are inquisitive, a natural reporter, attractive to opposite sex, fond of travel and a person who is better at helping others than when it comes to self-interest. Start you made this year will begin to bear fruit in 1974, with June a most significant month. If single, marriage is on horizon.

ACTION LINE

DIAL 477-2121

Or Write P.O. Box 81669, Lincoln, NE 68501

My ex-husband is in the Navy, and is more than six months behind on his child-support payments. I can't get the appropriate county authorities to do anything. Can ACTION LINE help?

Bonnie P., Seward

ACTION LINE: Captain Walter Thomas, commander of the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps unit at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, said there are channels through the Navy command structure that will correct the situation.

He said you should address a letter to the Navy Judge Advocate, Navy Dept., Washington D. C. In addition a copy of the letter should be sent to the Chief of Navy Personnel in the same building.

Captain Thomas said as long as your husband is still on active duty, it's Navy policy to require payment of child support.

He noted that if you know the name of your husband's commanding officer, a phone call or letter to him would expedite the matter.

I would like to know why there are so many street lights buring in the industrial section of Lincoln Air Park West? It seems this is a waste of energy because many of the industrial sites aren't even in use.

—Michael M., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The lights are left on for security reasons, and there's no immediate prospect of them being reduced.

Rolland Harr, executive director for the Lincoln Airport Authority, said the lighting is needed to prevent vandalism at both the unused, and the industrial sites that are occupied.

He said another reason for the lighting is that new federal regulations for anti-hijacking measures at airports necessitates that the fence and the area to the west of the control tower be well-lighted.

Who now owns the land in northeast Seward County where the proposed Easter Seal Camp was to have been established? Also wasn't there some preliminary development completed before it was decided to move the camp to Milford?

—Alfred Novacek, Dwight

ACTION LINE: The site in northeast Seward County was never owned by the Nebraska Easter Seal Association, it was merely leased on a yearly basis from the Salt Valley Watershed District.

Mrs. Wayne Mann, field consultant for the association, said a decision had to be made, when the site at Milford was donated lease-free, on which place the camp should be located.

She said that some development had been completed on the earlier camp, but the feeling was that the association would be ahead in accepting the Milford site because it would save money, and also had many more recreational facilities already available for the children.

I would like some information about any groups in the area that use bagpipes and concentrate on Scottish music. Also can ACTION LINE possibly find the name of an instructor for me, so I can learn to play the pipes?

—Tom Payne, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: There is apparently only one lone piper gracing the moors and heather of the Lincoln area.

That would be Dr. Donald Gregory, an English professor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Dr. Gregory said the Nebraska Scottish Society may be forming a bagpipe group in the near future, but the final decision hasn't been made.

ACTION LINE gave Dr. Gregory your name and address, and he'll be calling you with information about obtaining instruction on the pipes.

I heard from a neighbor that there's a place downtown equipped with free babysitters, so that people can do their Christmas shopping free of their children. Is this true, and if so where is it?

—L.G., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Apparently there won't be any service like this available for the downtown area, but there is one in Havelock.

The Lincoln Downtown Promotional Council turned down a $1,400 request from the National Organization for Women to pay for babysitters and facilities for the children of Christmas shoppers.

Council member Bob Campbell said the project couldn't be funded because their budget is fixed a year in advance, and there were simply no funds available.

The service in the Havelock area is located at the Havelock Branch YWCA, 4332 No. 62nd St., and will operate from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday until Dec. 21.

Factory Orders Up

New York (AP) — New factory orders were sharply higher in October, after a slump in September, but construction spending lagged behind for the third straight month, the Commerce Department reported. Orders for new products rose $2.3 billion, or 3.1% to $77.43 billion, seasonally adjusted, while construction spending for the month totaled $134.7 billion, down 1.8% from September.

Laws Opposed

Toronto (AP) — The chairman of IBM World Trade Corp. of New York said he is opposed to making international laws to regulate the behavior of multinational corporations. In a speech to the Canadian Club, Gilbert Jones suggested such laws would inevitably be inflexible and lead to operating inefficiencies.

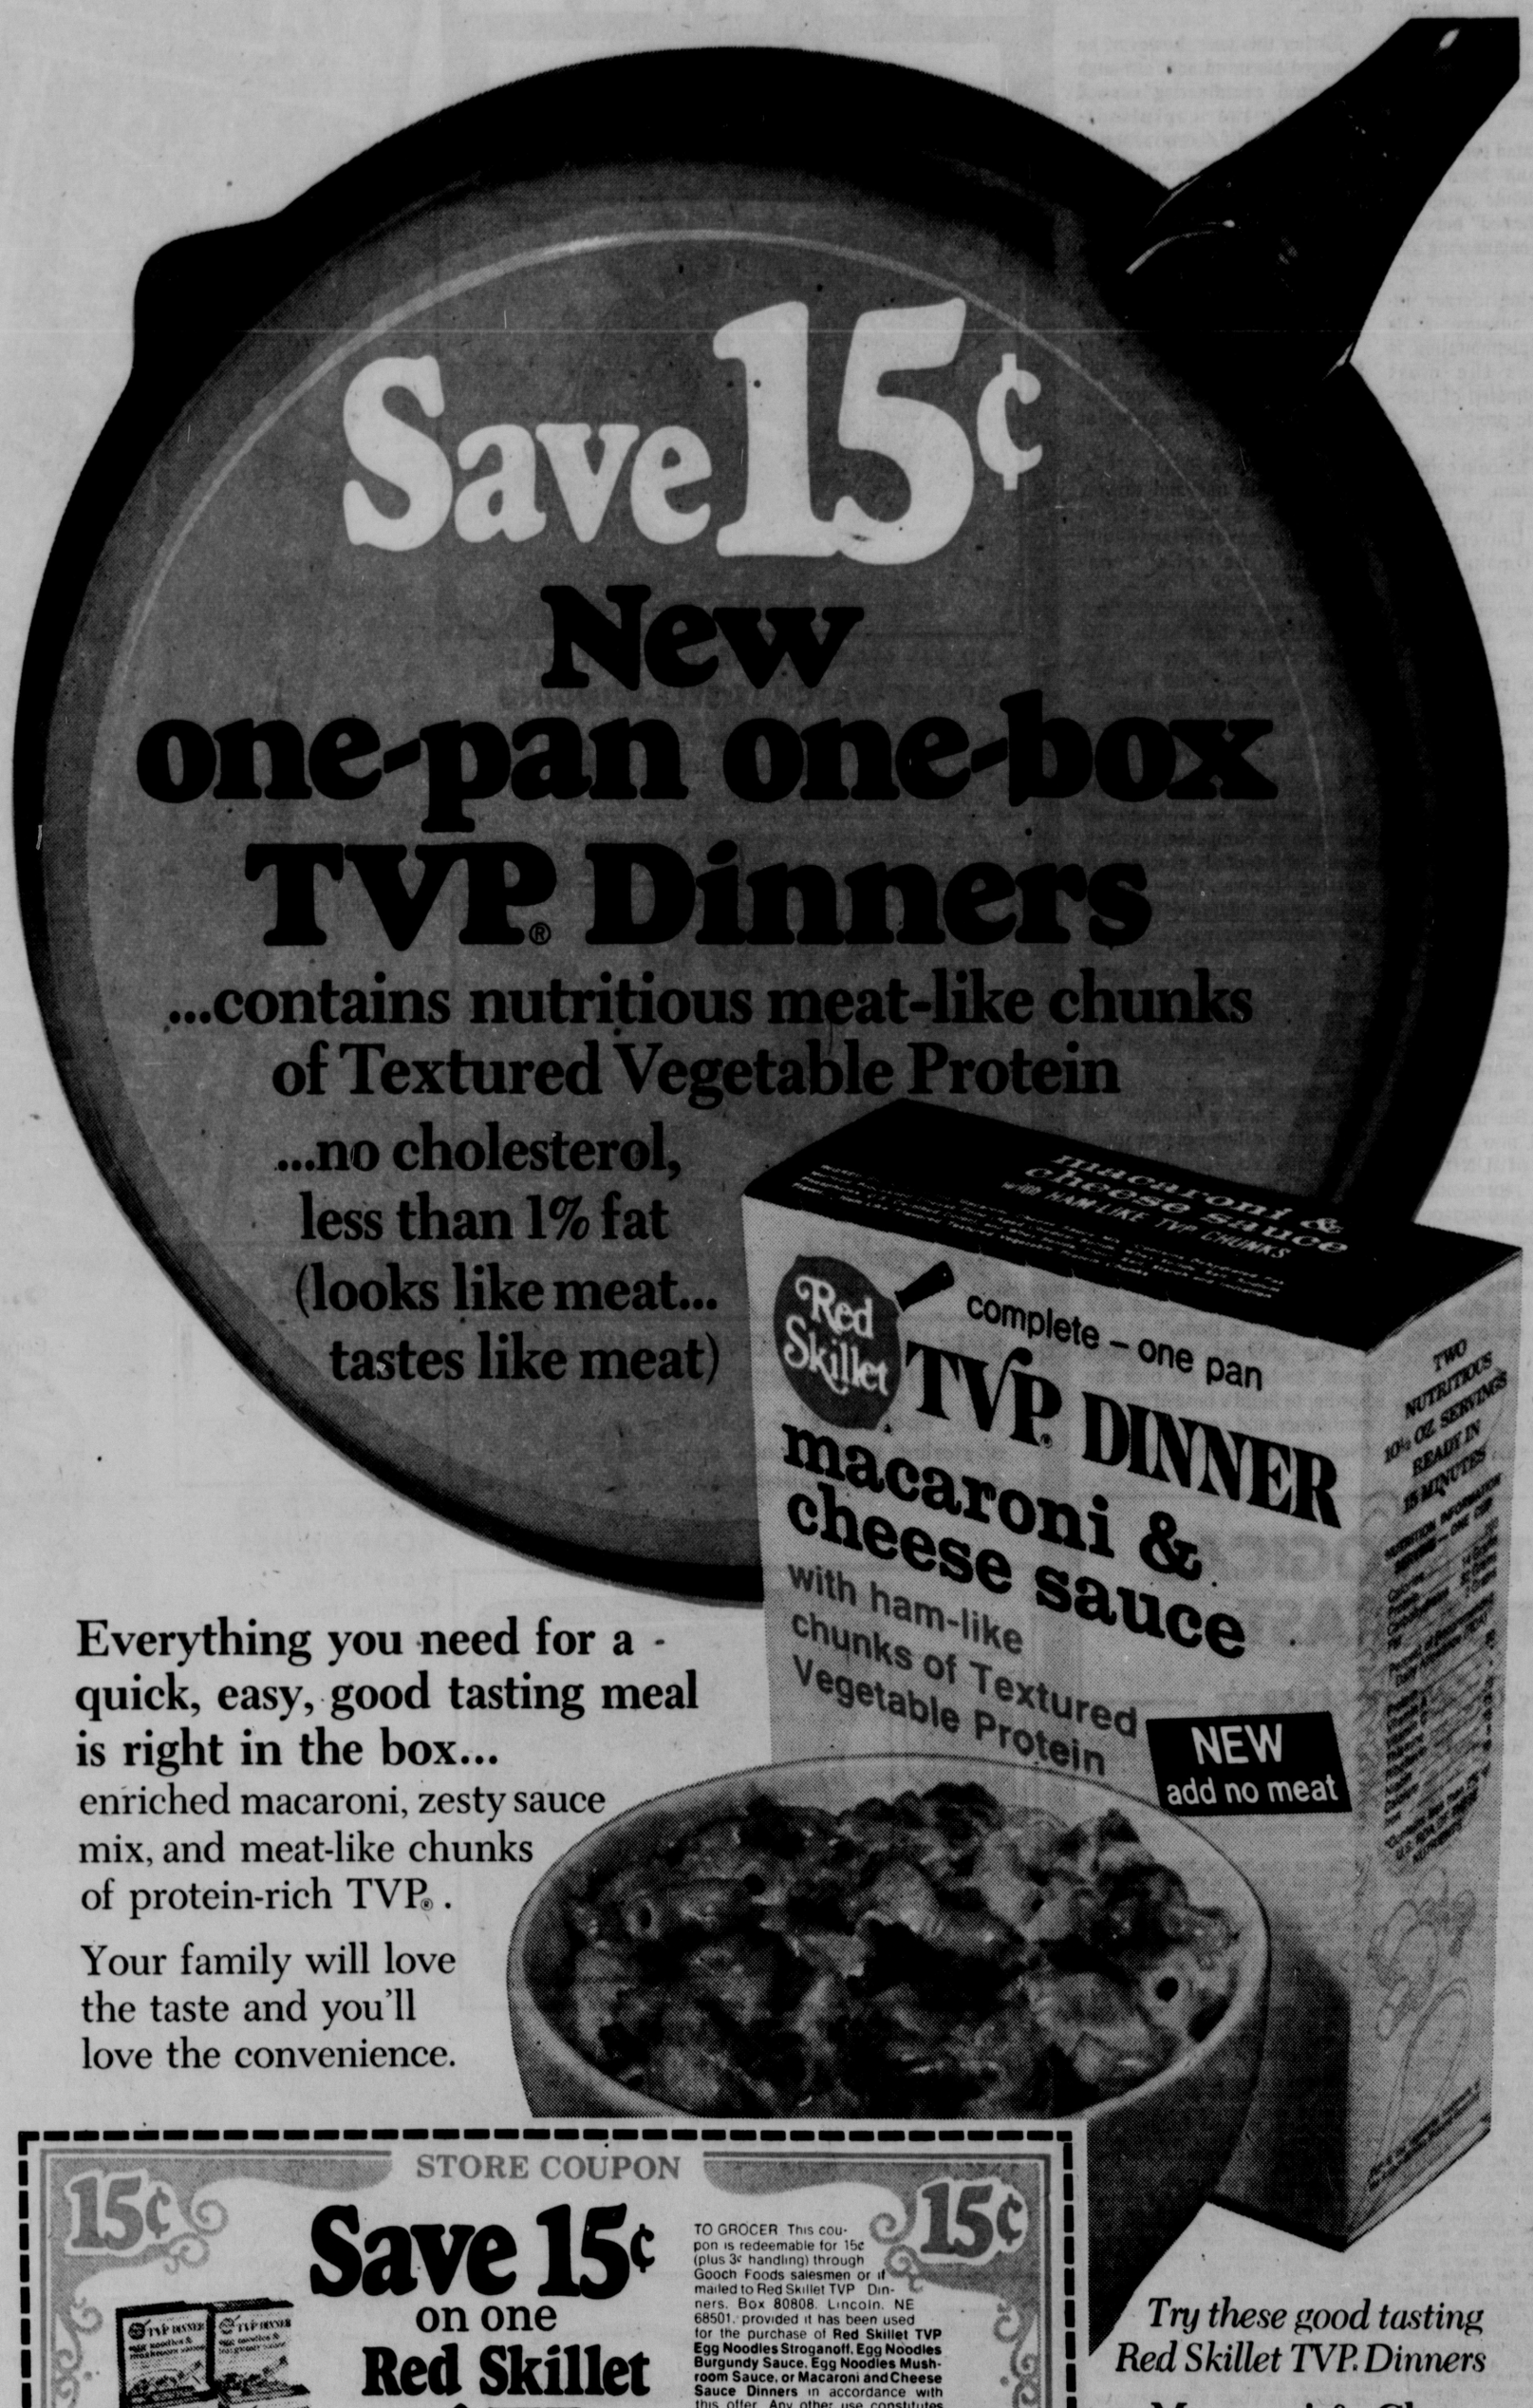

Airline Head Claims Situation Manageable

Miami (AP) — The chairman of National Airlines says fuel shortage problems could last three to five years but maintains the situation is manageable. L. B. Maytag told a stockholders meeting that although airlines are highly visible, they consume a relatively small portion of the nation's fuel supply."

Prelude Corp. To Quit Fishing

Westport Point, Mass. (AP) — The Prelude Corp., which pioneered deep-sea lobster fishing, is closing down its fishing operations because the business is too expensive and lobsters have disappeared.

The company sparked an international incident in 1971 by charging that Soviet trawlers were destroying its fishing gear and filing suit against a state-owned Soviet company.

Nebraska Climate Is Getting Colder

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following story was written as an assignment in the University of Nebraska School of Journalism depth reporting class. The author is a senior from Palmyra.

By JANE MENNINGA

Did you hear about the Nebraska farmer who was plowing his corn with a team of mules? It was so hot, the corn began popping. The mules thought it was snow, and promptly froze to death.

With such a tall tale, a settler of the early 1900s portrayed the shiftless character of Nebraska weather. He experienced harsh winters, sizzling summers, and actually gloated about his ability to endure.

Unlike the oldtimers, the more contemporary Nebraskan bases his attitude not on the extremes, but on the moderate temperatures.

"That Beautiful-Nebraska, Chamber-of-Commerce point of view maintains that the average Nebraska temperature is 74 degrees," said Roger Welsch, a Nebraska folklorist and English professor at both the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Harsh Coldness

But whatever attitude you claim — either the pioneering extreme or the Beautiful-Nebraska moderate — Nebraska weather stands to exhibit much the same harsh coldness it did in the early centruy.

In fact, Merlin Lawson, UN-L professor of geography, reports that Nebraska's summers and winters are getting colder while the transitional seasons (spring and fall) are staying about the same.

Winters are about five-tenths of a degree colder than the overall century average of 30.5 degrees. Summers are averaging about 72.7 degrees compared to the century average of 73.9 degrees.

"We're experiencing the coldest period in this century," Lawson said.

But it hasn't always been that way.

Significant Changes

As Albert Peters, a Ph.D. candidate in climatology at UN-L, explains, the temperature in the United States in this century has been undergoing a series of significant changes.

The average temperature was coldest from around the turn of the century to the mid-teens. Then the temperatures increased almost yearly until 1940 when they began decreasing gradually. From 1950 to 1965, another increase in temperature occurred, but not as great as that of the 1940s. Since 1965, the temperatures have fallen steadily.

Lawson said the warmest years in this century were in 1934 and 1953 with average temperatures of 54.7 degrees. The coldest year was 1917 with an average yearly temperature of 50.9 degrees.

1915 Level

Temperatures now are back to the level experienced in 1915 with average readings significantly cooler than the average yearly temperature of 52.99 degrees over the last century, Peters said.

This information, compiled by Peters and Donald Rundquist, an urban geography Ph.D. candidate at UN-L, is based on a two-year historical study of temperture change in the 20th century.

Lawson, the project adviser, said temperature readings taken since 1912 at 28 benchmark weather stations across the United States were compared to show the climatic changes.

Benchmark stations were chosen from among 3,000 weather stations because of their reliability and length of record, Lawson said. None of the stations has moved or been interrupted by environmental changes such as urbanization, deforestation or manmade modifications.

Lawson said that of the nine regional temperature variations in the United States, Nebraska — partly in the central and partly in the north central area — most highly correlates with the national trends.

Crete Most Aecurate

Nebraska data are based on recordings from 1912 to 1971 from benchmark stations at Crete, Neb., and Cottonwood, S.D. Lawson said that of the weather stations set up by the U.S. Weather Bureau in 1890, Crete provides the most accurate data.

C. Bertrand Schultz, director of the Nebraska State Museum, said some climatology experts are using these statistics to predict the coming of another Northern Hemisphere glacial period by the year 2000.

However, he maintains the temperature could just as easily start climbing again.

"We would have had palm trees in Falls City in the early part of the 21st century if the warming trend of the 1940s would have continued," Schultz said. "We couldn't go skating because the ice wouldn't freeze.

"It was the warmest time in 700 years," he said. "But then the temperatures started dropping again."

Cooler Conditions

Lawson agrees: "True we are approaching significantly cooler conditions now, but that doesn't mean we'll continue to have colder weather.

"All weather goes through periodic fluctuations," he said. "For people to get the notion it will continue to get cooler because it did for a few years is invalid."

Rundquist added that you can't abstract temperatures on a global scale with less than 100 years of data.

In fact, Lawson said, the change probably isn't enough for most Nebraskans even to notice. And, if they do, it could be just a matter of perspective.

Yet, as Welsch said, the peioneers claimed that changes were so abrupt they could actually be seen coming.

Tall Tale

He related a tall tale about a man who started to chase a deer when he was cultivating corn and had to run him into a snow drift to catch him.

The early Nebraskan felt he gained no credit from gowing a crop in a garden; his accomplishment was growing a crop in a desert," he said.

Many Nebraska oldtimers still maintain this pioneering attitude, Welsch said. They claim that Nebraska — the great American desert — is a near-to-impossible place to live.

And, he said, they are right.

"Nebraska probably has a harsher climate than anywhere else in the nation," Welsch said. "For someone from the outside this seems like a terrible place to live, but we're used to it."

Equally Annoying

For every extreme, there is an equally annoying, exact opposite here.

Welsch gave these examples: Daily temperature increases of as much as 40 to 50 degrees and hourly increases of 20 degrees have been recorded. A reading of 47 degrees below zero has been recorded in Morrill County and 118 degrees at many locations. That's an absolute temperature range of 165 degrees.

But Welsch said, the loss of the pioneer awareness of weather extremes may be the result of technological change.

"My parents heated the house with coal and we got cold at night," he said. "Now I never get cold unless the elctricity goes off."

Car heaters, air conditioners and more indoor-oriented jobs may mold a person's shortcomings in noticing changing temperature, he said.

The pioneers could look at the weather more realistically than people do today, he said.

Safety Acts To Be Topic Of Meeting

Two Federal Acts which have a widespread impact upon employers in Nebraska will come under analysis at a conference in Lincoln on Thursday, sponsored by the Nebraska Safety Council. The meeting will be held at the Ramada Inn beginning at 9:00 a.m. and continuing through luncheon.

The two acts are the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 and the Consumer Product Safety Act which was signed into law by the President Oct. 27, 1972.

A complete report on changes in the standards established by the secretary of labor under the OSH Act in the past year will be presented, along with a review of decisions on a variety of contested cases which have been before the Review Commission in the last twelve months.

The information on the Consumer Product Safety Act will be focused on understanding the coverage of the act and determining the responsibilities of manufacturers, distributors and retailers of consumer products.

Christmas Trees...

Each year about this time, some 35 million trees are cut to decorate our homes and add to our Christmas holiday pleasure. Some of you have expressed a concern over the possible damage to the ecological balance caused by cutting so many trees. So, we asked the experts.

It seems that most Christmas trees today are grown on tree plantations or farms especially for this purpose. More than 85 million trees are planted each year to replace those that are harvested. The accepted practice is to plant two or three seedlings for each tree cut to insure an adequate supply for years to come. It takes six to twelve years to grow a tree to a suitable size for harvesting.

Tree farms are often planted on ground unsuitable for other crops, so the trees prevent soil erosion while providing green belts throughout our country. Each acre of Christmas trees provides enough oxygen to supply eighteen people daily.

If you buy a cut tree this Christmas, you can sometimes judge its freshness by gently bending the needles. If they bend instead of breaking, the tree is fresh. Bounce the tree stump firmly on the ground; if there is excessive needle drop from the limbs, the tree is too dry. To help assure that the tree will stay fresh and flame resistant, cut off about 2" from the stump and mount the tree in a water holding container. Keep it damp throughout the holiday season.

Trees are biodegradable and can be used as an excellent mulch when chipped. The branches can be layered over flower beds to provide protection and act as springtime mulch. Cut up the trunk for your fireplace after removing the branches.

Today's tree growing methods assure us a continued supply of the natural, green trees we all love for Christmas, and actually aid the environment at the same time.

'Subsidy Might Have Helped Preserve Nursing Program'

A state subsidy might have helped Lincoln General Hospital retain its nursing training program, Hospital Administrator Robert Brungard told a legislative committee Tuesday.

The program is now being phased out — with the last graduating class scheduled for 1976 — as a result of financial problems.

Brungard pegged the program's estimated loss at $165,000 this year.

Private nursing schools did seek help from the Legislature about four years ago, he said, but they ran into the constitutional prohibition against state financial assistance for private institutions.

Another Angle

Sen. Thomas Kennedy of Newman Grove, chairman of the Legislature's Public Health and Welfare Committee, wondered if institution of a state subsidy program would have allowed Lincoln General to retain its nursing training program.

"There might possibly have been a different decision with a subsidy," Brungard said.

What the hospital is hoping for now, he said, is establishment of a University of Nebraska nursing program on the Lincoln campus.

Students could then use the Lincoln hospitals for training purposes, he said.

'Without Cost'

"Then we could have educational programs on the campus without our patients bearing the cost," Brungard noted.

That, he admitted, would be a case of "having your cake and eating it too."

Sen. Glenn Goodrich of Omaha suggested that the hospital could "contract with the university" for the academic portions of nursing training while providing the clinical experience on its own.

Sen. John Cavanaugh III of Omaha wondered if Lincoln General's decision to close out ist program was "irretrievable" even if the 1974 Legislature took some action to assist private programs.

That, Brungard said, would be a decision for Lincoln General's board.

Labor Groups Hoping To See Stronger Court

Labor groups will be seeking support for a stronger State Court of Industrial Relations during the 1974 legislative session, it was learned Tuesday.

John Lynch, executive secretary of the Nebraska State Education Association, said the chief changes sought will be to double the $75 per diem compensation allowed the judges and to provide a staff to handle the administrative work.

The changes will be supported by the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers along with NSEA.

One of the major reasons for the change, Lynch indicated, was to allow the court assistance in handling its workload. The court presently has approximately 30 cases pending before it and has no full-time staff to do the work. The lack of staff has resulted in some delays in the handling of cases.

Lynch said the changes would leave "the judges freer to make their decisions."

$131,811 Listed As Owed IRS In Back Taxes

Omaha (AP) — An Internal Revenue Service tax lien said an Omahan owed the government $131,811 in back taxes.

Douglas County Register of Deeds C. Harold Ostler said his office served notice Monday against John Joseph Salanitro, 51.

IRS officials said the lien results from a recent FBI investigation and raid on Salanitro's home where more than $40,000 was seized.

The lien claimed that Salanitro owes the tax for a period ending Nov. 28. The basis for the tax is given as "wagering."

Federal prosecutors said the Salanitro raid and federal raids on five other places in Omaha two weeks ago were the result of a federal wiretap.

They said that evidence gained in the raids would be referred to a federal grand jury.

Tito Will Continue

Jajce, Yugoslavia (UPI) — President Tito, in a reunion with partisans present at the birth of a Communist Yugoslavia 30 years ago, told the nation he would continue as president as long as he is physically able.

POSTCARD

by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — Lunch on a rainy day with friend from Fiji. He said: "Fifty Japanese businessmen came through last week. They're an advance scouting party for 400 more! Looking for anything to buy in the South Pacific."

The Rising Sun is buying up the world.

"By year 2000, the Japanese gross national product will be greater than any other country." Thus from the financial pages.

The chill of winter is up and waiting for us these mornings. As a matter of cold discipline, I do 10 minutes of heel-and-toe. It is supposed to be good for you. Keeps the clock ticking regularly.

That is what it says in the medical magazines today.

A year from now I will pick up the magazine and read: "Contrary to general opinion, walking can be harmful, etc."

Still, I continue top read the health magazine. Where else could I get my authentic, incredible symptoms which have baffled medical science for years?

While Japan takes over the universe, things are changing on the Ginza. "Japan Has Trouble Getting Geishas." That is news in the morning paper. I spent some time studying geishas.

The proper Kyoto geisha spends four years studying the trade, from giggles to tea ceremony. (Same time it takes to process a West Point cadet from first year to second lieutenant.)

During the Occupation years, the demand was greater than the supply.

In the "water business" — (that's what they call show business) — these were known as "pillow geishas."

Keep healthy, mates. Some two hundred insect pests have grown immune to DDT. Sad to say, you and I have not.

Scientists say we are eating so much lead in what they spray on crops that we will soon be lead poisoned. The human race will disappear. The immune insects will take over.

Insect historians will record that we went down swinging.

Speaking of the land of geishas. ("What's a geisha, Daddy?" I said: "Don't interrupt when I'm working. Ask your mother.")

In the land of cherry blossoms a Tokyo magazine did a survey on Japanese men. The survey found it's Mana-san who rules the old tatami scatter:

Item: 92% let Mana-san do the buying.

Item: 50% fear Honorable Wife.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Be safety minded when you buy toys.

Some toys are extremely attractive to small children, but very dangerous. Protect the young child from accidents, by avoiding the purchase of small toys that can be swallowed, flammable toys, or toys with sharp, pointed characteristics.

Certain toys are dangerous because of their use. The Nebraska Medical Association reminds you that toys made of lead or colored with lead-based paints are apt to be poisonous.

If you should choose an electric toy gadget, check it carefully to make certain it cannot shock your child and make sure the child learns proper operation and safety.

Never let small children play with sharp Christmas ornaments, burn-out light bulbs, or Christmas tree wires.

The safest toys you can buy for toddlers are washable, lightweight, durable, and toys that are too large to put in the mouth.

Sunday Session Not 1st Since 1861

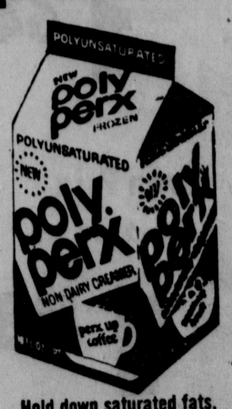

Washington (UPI) — Sunday's Senate session was not the first such meeting since 1861, as was first believed.

The Senate librarian said Monday that the Senate held Sunday sessions twice since 1861 — on March 4, 1923 and March 3, 1929.

Prices Increased

Seoul (AP) — South Korea announced immediate sharp price increases for petroleum products, ranging from 28% to 65.8% for factory delivery and 20.6% to 27% at the retail level.

Women Choose To Stay Home... And Like It

By LISA HAMMEL

New York — The doors to a free choice between working and staying at home have been opening wide for middleclass women. But numbers of them have walked through those doors and then returned, eager for the experience of being home with their children — at least in the earlier years.

They are very aware that there is today a kind of stigma attached to the woman who opts for kinder and kuche over the world of work. But they don't much care. They want to be with their children and enjoy the freedom of using their time as they wish.

"It wasn't much of a decision for me; it was natural," said Sybil Maimin, a former book editor who has a son, Daniel, 3, and is expecting another child. "I didn't feel any pressure to continue working. I guess it's like having sowed your oats. Publishing was an exciting experience; motherhood is an exciting experience.

"But it's not just the baby," she continued. "It's being independent. Not having a boss. Making my own hours. Being outside in the summer. All those housewife cliches have just not turned out that way for me. When I do think of working again, my ideas all seem to converge on doing something independent because I'd hate to give that up."

Recently, about 20 women who live in New York City and the suburbs were asked why they stopped working when their first child was born. In their late 20's and their 30's, they were well-educated, married to men in business or the professions and had children ranging in age from infants to primary graders. Most of them had worked for about five to 10 years — usually in traditional women's fields — and could afford not to work.

"I remember when I worked, I enjoyed the job tremendously. And it was difficutl to make the decision because I was making a good salary," said Phyllis Weberman, who taught high school for 10 years before the birth of her daughter, Erica, now almost 3.

"But there were things I wanted to do, and I decided that when I stopped working I would do some of those things — for my own enjoyment. And this is as important a reason for my staying home as Erica and her needs."

For many of the mothers, an outstanding reason for staying home is the delight they feel in being with their children.

But besides the pleasure of their company, an important factor for most of the mothers is the desire to be the prime influence in their children's lives during the formative years.

"It's important that I stay home and raise my daughter rather than let someone else," said Sandra Russell, a former college admissions assistant, whose daughter, Beth, is almost 5, "because I have certain standards and I want some control over how my child develops."

"I only seem to be able to give myself fully to one thing at a time," said Joan Schwartz, who lives in Rye, N.Y., with her husband, Allen, a lawyer, and their three small children. "But if someone can really divide themselves, I think that's terrific for them."

"If a woman's going to be a mother," said Sandra Russell, "she must commit herself to motherhood."

"I know people who are good mothers," said Marilyn Robertson, a former city agency administrative assistant and mother of two small boys, "but I think they might be happier and so might their children, if they worked."

Do women — increasingly exhorted to go out in the world and fulfill themselves — feel any pressure to return to work?

"You do feel some pressure from time to time to return to work," said Ellen Bernstein, who was in personnel work before 21-month-old Jonathan was born (there is now also 6-week-old Catherine). "But I chose this, and this is what I want to do. I think each person has to make that decision for herself."

None of the mothers voices the complaint that their days are spent in a Christopher Robin world of under-6's, without any communication with adults. Where there is boredom and drudgery they said, it is mostly connected with household chores. And being home with a child doesn't necessarily mean being homebound.

"I think maybe it would have been harder living in the city," said Sue Smith, mother of a 6- and 4½-year-old, who lives in Hastings-On-Hudson. "In the suburbs, there is much more independence you can give the children."

"It's really country here," said Joan Schwartz of her home in Rye. "We're near water and a wildlife refuge and we spend a lot of time in the woods around the house. I feel very closed in, in the city."

More Women Apprenticeships

Washington — Eileen Jobb and Roberta Lord of Pullman, Wash., share a unique distinction — they are the first women to be apprenticed as painters in their state.

After completing a three-year program sponsored by the Pullman-Moscow (Ida.) Joint Apprenticeship and Training Committee, they can expect to earn as much as $7.50 an hour as journeyman painters.

These women are among a growing number across the country who are entering apprenticeship programs traditionally dominated by men. Attracted by the opportunity for challenging work and good pay, women are making a number of breakthroughs in apprenticeship.

Four women in Baton Rouge, La., have become the first to enter the Exxon Corporation's instrument technician apprentice program, while the Boeing Company in Seattle, Wash., has signed its first woman apprentice machinist.

In Beaumont, Tex., the Bricklayers recently signed their first female apprentice, and Sacramento, Calif., has its first woman meatcutter.

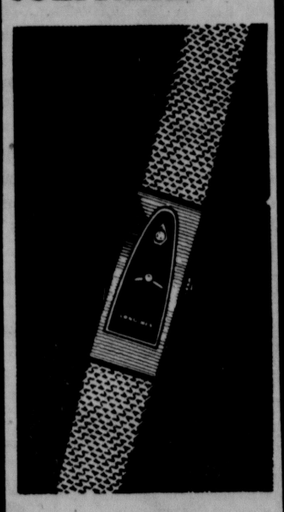

Other "firsts" for women in apprenticeship include:

—Maryland, the first woman drywall mechanic.

—North Carolina, the first female apprentice electrician.

Even 'Safe' Toys Aren't Pain Proof

In the wrong hands and without adult supervision and instruction, even the "safe" toys can be a potential danger.

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Skates, drums, dolls, tricycles, trucks, darts, toy toasters and irons.

All head the list of the most asked-for items in Santa's warehouse.

All are toys, guaranteed to give your child many hours of pleasure.

But they also are potential sources of pain.

Experts have found that thousands of youngsters each year are injured by their "safe" toys.

Button eyes on dolls and stuffed animals can be yanked off, swallowed, and lodged in a tiny throat.

Hard plastic toys may be dropped and broken, leaving sharp edges and points that may cause cuts or skin injuries.

Darts, BB's and playthings with projectiles may cause permanent eye injury. Drums or other toys making excessively loud sounds may bring about ear injury.

Too long cords on pull toys or play irons, toasters and phones enable the child to trip or become tangled and, possibly, strangled.

And roller skates, perhaps the most popular toys, cause as much as 36% of all toy related injuries annually.

It's not that these toys are among the 1,500 playthings banned within the last few years by the federal government's toy policing network. Most are of sturdy construction. They are made, where possible, of non-toxic, non-breakable materials. And many come with a clear statement of the age group for which the toy was specifically designed.

But in the wrong hands and without adult supervision and instruction, these toys can be a potential danger to children.

Those toys and several others were spotted during a check of toy departments in three Lincoln stores. Other potentially hazardous "toys" found in the survey include scissors and sleds, dart guns, target sets and shoot out games complete with lead balls for ammunition; do it yourself jewelry and toy kits and packages of play money with pieces small enough to be swallowed easily.

Sounds technical?

What on earth are the children to play with?

Since most toys are purchased during the last three months of the year and over half of those are for children five years of age or less, it is important that parents realize the potential dangers inherent in their child's playthings. They must inform their children of the safe use of their toys. And adult supervision is always a must, particularly when little hands can get a hold of an older brother's or sister's toys.

"We don't want to take toys away from children, but we want supervision until the child is qualified to handle them," said Dr. Ron Daly, family life specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"It would help if adults would look through the eyes of their children when selecting toys," he recommended.

A toy train a young child can push around the room will bring him more satisfaction than a complicated train that is set up by daddy while the child watches it go around and around in a circle, he said. "Buy the train for father!" he suggested.

Dr. Daly said the best toys are those that encourage the imagination and creativity of a child.

But safety also is a vital factor, he added, pointing out that data gathered through the National Electronic Injury Surveillance System (NEISS), and based upon injury records from 119 hospitals across the nation from July 1, 1972 through June 30, 1973, showed that emergency room treatment was required for nearly 143,000 toy-related accidents and 372,000 bicycle-related injuries. Roller skates were found to be the single most dangerous toy.

The family life specialist listed several questions parents should ask themselves when shopping for toys:

—Are there any sharp points or edges?

—Are there any buttons or fixtures that could be pulled off and swallowed or lodged in an ear or nostril?

—Is your selection really a toy or is it a weapon?

—Is it decorated with non-toxic paint?

—Can it be dropped and easily broken?

—Does the tail come off a wooden toy exposing a nail?

—Does it have a string longer than 12 inches which can be tangled about the neck or lodged in the throat?

—Is it made of non-flammable or flame-retardant material?

—Does its label recommend a certain age group? Does it fit the maturity of the particular child?

—Is it well balanced so it cannot be easily tipped over?

—Does it have movable parts or springs that can pinch fingers or catch hair?

First Snowfall

Today's Write On author is married and a teacher at Millard Lefler Junior High School. She taught in Weeping Water for three years.

By JUDITH JOHNSON

There's something magical about the first snowfall of the year.

This statement is likely to bring opposition from many people. Some, when they hear the word "snow", automatically think of shoveling walks, being tied up in snarling traffic jams because of it, taking extra precautions when they are walking on a sidewalk covered by it, and getting colds or pneumonia after being exposed to it. They see the disadvantage of snow and consider it to be a big nuisance.

These people have a point. It's no fun to be stranded, made uncomfortable or miserable because of the fluffy white stuff on the ground. But, note that I said that there's something magical about the first snowfall of the year. Consider the following things:

— the small child standing at the window on the afternoon when the snow is just beginning. He watches it for awhile, then turns to his mother and says, "Mommy, how many more will there have to be before I can make a snowman?"

— looking out the back door in the evening after it has been snowing most of the day. Snow is still falling softly, and the moon is beginning to come out from behind the clouds. If there is such a thing as a winter wonderland, this must be it.

— being awakened at 5:30 a.m. the following morning by your two school-aged children wondering if you've heard anything on the radio about school being cancelled for the day. Or, if you are a teacher, it's listening to the radio at that time and praying.

— getting out of bed and looking out of the living room window at the lovely view outside. The whole world (or at least as much of it as you can see) appears to be at peace with itself. The ground is covered with a thick, soft blanket of white, and it is so early that nothing, except a rabbit running across the lawn, has disturbed it. The scene is so picturesque that it appears to be a picture on a Christmas card.

The first snowfall of the year seems to bring a tranquility — however brief — to the scurrying day-to-day routine. It forces people to pause, to realize once again their helplessness and reliance on nature. Then, after they have paused to reflect on this matter, it's time to get the shovel out and get busy.

Freud Comes To Rescue

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for trying to get parents to accept their homosexual children as they are. Mine never would, and I almost had a nervous breakdown trying to keep it from them.

Abby, we need love and acceptance from our parents even more than heterosexual children do. But how can children ever hope to educate their parents? They read your column. Can you help?

GAY AND HURTING

DEAR HURTING: Perhaps if your parents read the classic letter Dr. Freud wrote to the mother of a homosexual on April 9, 1935, it would help them to understand. I hope so. Here it is:

"Dear Mrs.:

I gather from your letter that your son is a homosexual. I am most impressed by the fact that you do not mention this term yourself in your information about him. May I question you, why you avoid it? Homosexuality is assuredly no advantage, but it is nothing to be ashamed of, no vice, no degradation, it cannot be classified as an illness; we consider it to be a variation of the sexual function produced by a certain arrest of sexual development.

Many highly respectable individuals of ancient and modern times have been homosexuals, several of the greatest men among them (Plato, Michelangelo, Leonardo da Vinci, etc.).

It is great injustice to persecute homosexuality as a crime, and cruelty, too. If you do not believe me, read the books of Havelock Ellis.

By asking me if I can help, you mean, I suppose, if I can abolish homosexuality and make normal heterosexuality take its place. The answer is, in a general way, we cannot promise to achieve it. In a certain number of cases we succeed in developing the blighted germs of heterosexual tendencies which are present in every homosexual, in the majority of cases it is no more possible. It is a question of the quality and the age of the individual. The result of treatment cannot be predicted.

What analysis can do for your son runs in a different line. If he is unhappy, neurotic, torn by conflicts, inhibited in his social life, analysis may bring him harmony, peace of mind, full efficiency, whether he remains a homosexual or gets changed.

If you make up your mind he should have analysis with me!! I don't expect you will!! He has to come over to Vienna. I have no intention of leaving here. However, don't neglect to give me your answer.

Sincerely yours with kind wishes
Freud"

DEAR ABBY: Our 14-year-old daughter (9th grader) is cohosting a boy-girl party for classmates in the basement recreation room of her best friend's home. The friend's parents will be out of town so my husband and I were asked to be chaperones.

Our daughter has made it clear that we were not to "ruin" the party by insisting that they keep the lights on down there.

While we would not expect to plunk ourselves down in the middle of the room and hold a dialog with the kids, we feel that we should be able to move freely in and out of the group. We also object to the party being held in the dark. What do you think?

SQUARE PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: If you are "square", I am in all four of your corners. Tell the kids you intend to pop in and out from time to time, and they had better keep a light or two on, or no party!

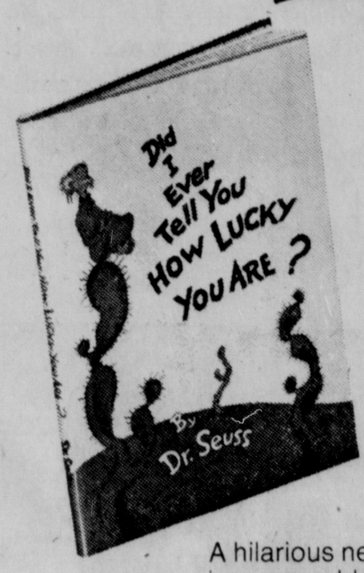

Problems: You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY; Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Beware Of Boils On Christmas

Beware — a bath or change of underwear on Christmas Day will bring boils. If you are superstitious that is.

Superstitions and beliefs surrounding the Christmas season have followed it through the ages and have been passed from generation to generation.

Some superstitions dealing with animals, weather and a few odds and ends have been compiled by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Dept. of Agricultural Communications in a holiday news story.

One belief is that oxen kneel at midnight and that cattle can talk on Christmas Eve. Pennsylvania Germans say that a person born between 11 and 12 on Christmas Eve can understand what the cattle are saying.

These same people also believe that bees crawl outside their hives on Christmas Eve, regardless of the cold temperatures or bitter snow.

Ozark customs say that cattle bellow and talk on the eve of old Christmas, which is Jan. 5.

Even roosters get into the act. Another animal superstitiion is that cocks crow all together at 3 a.m. Christmas morning.

If Christmas is on Friday winter will be easy and the summer dry, according to superstition. But if it takes place on Monday, the winter will be great, winds in the summer will be strong and many animals will die.

Another adage predicts that a white Christmas will mean a green Easter, and a green Christmas will mean a white Easter.

The number of snowfalls that will occur in the next spring can be foretold by the number of days between the first snowfall of winter and Christmas day, according to another belief.

In the odds and ends category are these superstitions:

—An open grave on Christmas Day will mean an open grave all year long.

—It is unlucky to spin or sew on Christmas Day.

—The dew on Christmas Eve is a preventive to illness.

—The water in wells and fountains is mysteriously and miraculously changed to wine or given great healing powers on Christmas Eve.

Opening lead - jack of hearts.

Guess situations arise all the time, but the mark of a fine declarer is that he nearly always guesses right.

Look at the spade combination here. South cannot help making the contract if the spades are divided 2-1, but he may lose a spade trick if they are divided 3-0.

In the latter case, the outcome depends on whether he plays the ace or the king first. If he leads the ace and West shows out, he loses a trump trick to East. If he leads the king and East shows out, he loses a trump trick to West.

South can't be sure of how to tackle such a combination, but in some hands he will guess right because of extraneous factors. This deal illustrates such a case.

East-West started with three rounds of hearts, declarer ruffing the last one. South then led a trump to the king, West showing out, and finessed the nine on the return. He later lost a club finesse but made four spades.

You could call this a lucky shot, but actually South's play was 100 per cent correct. He had indeed insured the contract by playing in this fashion, whereas — had he played the ace first — he would have placed the contract in jeopardy.

Let's suppose East had shown out on the king of trumps, which might well have happened. This would not have sunk South, since he was all set to handle such a contingency. He would cash the ace of trumps and K-A of diamonds, and ruff a diamond. A trump lead would then force West to play a club or concede a ruff and discard.

By playing the trumps in this fashion, declarer was in the happy position where, even if it turned out wrong, he would still be right.

'Tot Finder' Stickers Go Up

U.S. To Dip Into Oil Supplies To Replace So. Viet Losses

Washington (AP) — The United States will dip into its own scarce oil supplies to replace South Vietnamese oilstocks destroyed by Viet Cong attack "if there is a critical shortage," a Pentagon spokesman said Tuesday.

The spokesman told a briefing the Vietnamese are expected to try to get supplies on the open market, using funds provided by the United States under aid programs.

But he said the United States is prepared "to take up the slack" if the Vietnamese cannot buy enough oil to replace the millions of gallons destroyed in a Viet Cong rocket attack on a major oil depot near Saigon.

Meanwhile, the spokesman said, "It is hard to tell from here at this point" how serious a new North Vietnamese ground assault in the Central Highlands of South Vietnam may be.

He noted that there has been fighting along the Cambodian border for several weeks with what he called "significant forces" involved on both the Communist and government sides.

The spokesman stressed that, with U.S. forces no longer in South Vietnam, it is more difficult to gain detailed and accurate information on the progress of fighting there.

Supply Corridor Clashes Vicious

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops battled government forces along a key supply corridor Tuesday in South Vietnam's lower central highlands.

The vicious clashes came as the South Vietnamese government continued raids that have lifted the air war to the highest level of the 10-month Vietnam cease-fire.

Military sources said a large North Vietnamese force, backed by tanks and heavy artillery, launched 11 separate attacks on a 32-mile front from Dak Song southward to the district town of Kien Duc.

At Kien Duc, near the Cambodian border 90 miles northeast of Saigon, North Vietnamese and government troops engaged in hand-to-hand combat in the streets of the town.

Hundreds of South Vietnamese warplanes raided North Vietnamese and Viet Cong positions Monday and Tuesday in what the military command said were punitive strikes for Viet Cong attacks on Saigon's fuel reserves.

The intensified fighting was seen by government military spokesmen as a prelude to a general offensive South Vietnamese officials have been forecasting for early next year.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, chief spokesman for the South Vietnamese military command, said the North Vietnamese assaults on Kien Duc marked the first time the Communist command had attacked a district capital since the cease-fire went into effect last Jan. 28.

The attack, he said, threatened the provincial capital of Gia Nghia, 12 miles to the east.

Dak Song and Kien Duc both straddle vital Highway 14, the objective of North Vietnamese attacks since early November.

Initial reports said 45 North Vietnamese troops had been killed in the fighting and a half-dozen of their tanks were destroyed. Government casualties were not immediately available.

Kien Duc, a town of 3,000 population, is reportedly being defended by about 1,000 government troops. A Viet Cong spokesman in Saigon said his delegation had no report on the Kien Duc fighting, but added:

"We want to note that this as well as other areas had belonged to the Provisional Revolutionary Government for a long time and were taken by the Saigon administration after the cease-fire."

The Viet Cong delegation protested the government air strikes, saying government jets dropped more than 100 bombs on Loc Ninh airstrip and the town itself Monday. A delegation spokesman said the strikes killed and wounded dozens of civilians and destroyed nearly 100 houses.

The air strikes retaliated for the destruction Monday of up to 50 per cent of South Vietnam's fuel reserves, stored in tanks at Nha Be depot six miles from Saigon.

The Viet Cong denied a role in the attack, but their North Vietnamese allies said the depot was set afire by a Viet Cong artillery attack. It was one of the rare times the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong contradicted each other.

Rights Unit Eyes Closed Sessions

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The City Human Rights Commission (HRC) in its regular meeting Tuesday night discussed a proposal by Human Rights Officer Gerald Henderson that commissioners hold a second monthly meeting to investigate discrimination complaints more fully.

Commissioner William A. Wilson wondered whether some HRC members "may be inhibited about talking about cases" at meetings open to the public. Francis Zegers said he felt inhibited.

Acting chairman Mrs. Carol Reilly objected to a closed meeting idea, saying, "The public has a right to be aware of our dealing with our complaints. Henderson pointed out that HRC should establish procedures to eliminate talking in generalities on complaints at open meetings.

The commission closed two cases:

One involved alleged discrimination when a person was evicted from rented property and furniture left behind was removed. The commission found that the landlord had not taken the property and, in effect, dismissed the complaint against him.

In a second case closing, the commission approved a conciliation agreement between an interracial couple and a corporation. Henderson reported the couple had been denied renting an apartment owned by the corporation, but that a verbal conciliation agreement had been reached; however, HRC refused to recognize it. Instead, HRC negotiated for a written agreement for ongoing occupancy, a 30-day vacation notice by either party and notification to HRC for any action otherwise.

In other matters, Henderson said a revised employment complaint form will be submitted to the commissioners this week for review and should be finalized by mid-December. Under the city's affirmative action plan, the HRC is responsible for placing discrimination complaint forms throughout the city.

Henderson showed a poster advising employes how to file discrimination complaints, which will be distributed to employers possibly by early January.

He said the HRC is working with the Chamber of Commerce in distributing the posters and the city ordinance about discrimination practices, and 270 employers have already requested the material.

Henderson also reported that the lease for HRC office space at 1620 M has been sent to the mayor and is being reviewed by the city's legal department. Approval of the lease would give HRC 627 square feet and a conference room.

Further, Henderson discussed with commissioners the hiring of a secretary and a field investigator for HRC. Pay for the secretary could start at $438.53 monthly, and for the field investigator, $7,500-7,800 annually, he said. Recruitment for the two positions are outlined in the affirmative action plan.

He reported that HRC has resubmitted the action plan for approval by the federal Housing and Urban Development agency, with action on it expected before Jan. 1.

The commissioners heard a presentation on Project S.H.E. — Shoplifting Hurts Everyone, by M.J. (Bub) Graham of the Retail Merchants Association of Nebraska and Mrs. Chris Harris, director of the Lincoln Mrs. Jaycees civic and welfare board.

Mrs. Harris told the commissioners the Mrs. Jaycees state organization has adopted an anti-theft program and is "trying to reach as many adults" in the community as possible, instead of aiming only at teenagers or juveniles.

After showing a film on shoplifting detection methods, Graham told commissioners "it's darned important" that the courts are "not too rough" on shoplifters.

"The police in Lincoln have a good system" for dealing with the first offender, he said, in not assigning the offense to his permanent criminal record.

Because the next HRC meeting was scheduled on Jan. 1, a legal holiday, commissioners voted to change the meeting date to Tuesday, Jan. 8, at 7:30 p.m.

State Veterinarians Honor Dr. J. Hadley

KEARNEY, Neb. (AP)—The Nebraska Veterinary Medical Association, holding its 77th annual convention, presented its Veterinarian of the Year Award Tuesday night to Dr. Jack Hadley of Aurora.

Dr. Hadley has practiced in Aurora since graduation from the Colorado State School of Veterinary Medicine in 1954. He served as president of the Nebraska organization in 1968 and has been chairman of the group's Legislative Committee for several years.

The committee was instrumentl in adoption by the legislature of the current Veterinary Practice Act.

Dr. Hadley is the association's representative on the Livestock Industries Committee of Nebraska.

An honorary membership in the association was presented at tonight's banquet to Clifford A. Billings, longtime veterinary supply businessman in Omaha.

Billings joined the Grain Belt Supply Co. as a clerk in 1924. The firm was hurchased by Rohm and Waas in 1964, and Billings served as Omaha division supervisor until 1970.

He now is with the Alter Veterinary Supply in Omaha. Four of Billings' five children are connected with the veterinary supply business.

The three-day convention ends at noon Wednesday.

Officers for the upcoming year were also elected Tuesday.

Dr. Dale Kinyoun of Suprior assumed the group's presidency, succeeding Dr. Charles Wempe of York.

DXR. Duane Rice of Broken Bow was chosen president-elect, and will assume his office next year.

Dr. Everett Stencel of Curtis was elected the group's new secretary-treasurer.

Hartley Area Group Meets To Organize

Approximately a dozen people turned out Tuesday night for the organizational meeting of a neighborhood organization of the Hartley area.

Charles Kitchen, who spearheaded the project, said 1,-200 informational flyers were distributed to residents in the Hartley area, from 28th to 33rd, O to X and diagonally to 42nd and Holdrege.

Carl Kopines, city housing administrator who works with neighborhood organizations, was on hand to explain the usual functions of such organizations and provide tips on getting started.

Residents of the area are concerned with traffic problems near the school, street lighting,s enior citizen programs and improved housing.

A meeting of a central organizing committee was scheduled for Dec. 11 at 2137 Clinton and a second meeting for the entire membership will be held after the holidays.

Woman's Death Said Caused By Old Injuries

Omaha (AP) — Authorities said injuries suffered more than a year ago when an electrically operated garage door closed on her have caused the death of Margaret White, 84, of Omaha.

She died in a hospital Monday of the injuries suffered in November of 1972.

Miss White's legs were broken when she slipped and fell beneath the door at the Omaha Education Association Apartments, were she lived. She had been hospitalized since the accident,.

Miss White, a native of Waverly, Iowa, came to Omaha in 1934 as executive director of the YWCA. She later left Omaha to work wth social service agencies in Los Angeles, Denver, St. Paul and Winona, Minn., and in Greece and Turkey.

Miss White retired to Omaha in 1948 and did work for the Visiting Nurses Association. She held a degree in social work from Columbia University.

Survivors include two sisters.

Heisman Winner, Who Cares?

Short shots while thinking about what a difference there is in interest in the Heisman Trophy balloting when your team has a candidate and when it doesn't.

As this paragraph is being written at 12:10 p.m., we're still awaiting the first call from someone who wants to know who won the Heisman Trophy.

At 10 minutes past noon a year ago, every telephone in The Lincoln Star newsroom was jingling because of Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers and Rich Glover being leading candidates for the award.

Not even that famous Italian basketball coach Joe Cipriano has called to check on fellow Italian John Cappelletti, who just happened to be the winner.

There's one coaching cliche that Dallas Cowboys' boss Tom Landry can't be using this week and that's the one, "I'd be satisfied to win by just one point this week."

When Dallas meets Washington with the National Football Conference's Eastern Division title at stake, it won't be enough for the Cowboys simply to win to gain the championship and clinch a playoff berth.

Must Win By Eight

A Dallas win would tie the Cowboys and the Redskins at 9-4. Under the National Football League's tie-breaker system for the playoffs, the next step is results of head-to-head competition. The Redskins would have won once, Dallas once.

Next it's the records within the division. Dallas and Washington would both be 5-2. Next comes record within the conference and both would be 7-3.

The next step is the point spread in games played by the two. Washington won the first meeting by seven points, meaning Dallas must win Sunday by at least eight points.

If the Cowboys do wind up as the Eastern Division champs in the NFC, they would be the host team for the game with the Western champion Los Angeles Rams on Dec. 22 or 23 and if they win that one, they'd be the host team for the conference championship against Minnesota or the wild card team on Dec. 30.

Southern Cal football coach John McKay says when he gets around to writing his autobiography, he's going to entitle it, "First and 25," cuz, "That's the way things are, in both football and life."

More than 50 Kansas football players have signed up for a Big Brother program in the Lawrence area with former KU star Bobby Skahan in charge.

Shootouts Change Corrals

Big shootouts in college football don't continue to take place in the same corral year after year and that's probably fortunate to keep press box floors from collapsing.

In 1969, writers had the walls bulging in the press box at the Arkansas-Texas game. In 1971, it was Nebraska at Oklahoma with OU sports information director Johnny Keith having to send out form letters telling writers making late requests to stay home and turn on their TV sets.

This year, the big scene switched to Ann Arbor, Mich., where more than 600 press credentials were issued for the Ohio State-Michigan deadlock.

Former Houston Oilers general manager John Breen says one of the Oilers' problems was that they were tipping off their plays to the opposing defenses as to who would be carrying the ball.

"When we'd break out of the huddle," he says, "Three of our backs would be laughing and the fourth would be pale as a ghost."

Cappelletti Runaway Winner For Heisman

. . . OHIO STATE'S HICKS, TEXAS' LEAKS, KANSAS' JAYNES TRAIL

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tailback John Cappelletti of Penn State, who almost quit football a year ago because of a lack of "mental toughness," Tuesday was named winner of the 1973 Heisman Trophy—awarded to the best college player in the nation—in a surprisingly onesided triumph.

The 6-foot-2, 206-pound senior, called by his coach, Joe Paterno, "the best football player I've ever been around," was a runaway winner in the balloting of 819 sportswriters and sportscasters around the country as he received 229 first place votes and 1,057 points.

John Hicks, a senior offensive tackle from Ohio State, finished a distant second with 524 points while Roosevelt Leaks of Texas, a junior running back, was third with 482 points.

Hicks' finish marked the highest placing for an interior lineman since Tom Brown of Minnesota, an offensive guard, finished second to Joe Bellino of Navy in 1960.

Senior quarterback David Jaynes of Kansas was fourth in the voting followed by sophomore running back Archie Griffin of Ohio State, senior linebacker Randy Gradishar of Ohio State and senior defensive lineman Lucious Selmon of Oklahoma.

Cappelletti, who rushed for 1,522 yards and scored 17 touchdowns this season while leading Penn State to an 11-0 record, was a slight favorite to win the award, but the outcome of the voting was much more one-sided than expected. The senior tailback was the top vote-getter in three of the five geographical sections of the country—East, South and Far West.

"I am surprised that I won," said Cappelletti, who played defensive back as a sophomore but was switched to running back his junior year. "I was with some of the other All-Americas just today and I saw big John Hicks walk in and I thought he might scare some people into voting for him.

"I'd like to see all of my teammates share in this award, and I'm going to see if something can't be done along those lines. Maybe I could get some smaller replicas of the trophy made up and give one to each member of the team. It's something I'm going to look into."

Cappelletti, who is the first Penn State player ever to win the award, admitted that winning the Heisman Trophy was especially gratifying for him, since he had seriously thought about quitting football early in his junior year.

"It was last year after the Iowa game. I thought I didn't have it any more," said the husky youngster from Upper Darby, Pa. "I gained only 96 yards in that game and fumbled a couple of times and I was confused about my ability as a player. We weren't playing well as a team and I questioned if I could get the job done. I thought about going to Coach (Joe) Paterno and telling him I'd had it. I couldn't concentrate on football. I didn't have the mental toughness a running back needs to excel.

"The Illinois game the next week helped me change my mind, though. I had a good game against them (124 yards rushing). I learned a lot from that game. I'm glad I decided to stick it out."

Paterno, who accompanied Cappelletti to the Heisman luncheon at the Downtown Athletic Club, said he considered his prize running back a sure first-round professional draft pick and likened him to Franco Harris, a former Penn Stater now an all-pro with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

"It's a reward for a very outstanding young man," said Paterno. "He is a winner in every sense that the trophy stands for. He's the best football player I've ever been around. He's got that something the great ones have. I can't put my finger on it, but very few players can do all the things he can. He's a fine pass receiver, he can throw and he has strength and speed.

"People keep saying how great Franco Harris is. Franco is a fine player, but John is faster than Franco and every bit as powerful. If I needed a running back, John would be my number one pick."

Hicks, a 6-3, 258-pound tackle from Cleveland, was called by his coach, Woody Hayes, the "best lineman I've ever coached, including Jim Parker." Hicks, who was the top votegetter in the Midwest, received the highest rating of any Ohio State lineman in nine of the team's 10 games.

Leaks, a 5-11, 209-pounder from Brenham, Tex., set a school single season rushing mark this year with 1,415 yards and came within eight yards of an NCAA single game rushing record when he gained 342 yards against SMU in a nationally-televised contest. Leaks was the top vote-getter in the Southwest.

UPI NAMES ALABAMA

. . . Coaches Pick Tide In Final Poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — Unbeaten-untied Alabama, a team three-deep in blue chip talent at most every position, Tuesday was named national college football champion for 1973 by the United Press International Board of Coaches.

The Crimson Tide of coach Paul "Bear" Bryant, which swept with nary a scare to a perfect 11-0 season, received an overwhelming vote of confidence of 21 first place votes and 325 points from the coaches in the final balloting. It was Alabama's third national championship — the two previous (1961 and 1964) also coming under Bryant's coaching reign.

Oklahoma, with only an early-season tie with Southern California marring its 10-0-1 record, was second with nine first place votes and 292 points. The UPI national championship, in an agreement with the American Football Coaches Association, is based on regular season play only.

There was only one major change in the final ratings from last week and that was Penn State's move into the top five, replacing Michigan which dropped to sixth. Otherwise, Rose Bowl-bound Ohio State remained No. 3 and Notre Dame, Alabama's Sugar Bowl opponent, wound up fourth.

Following fifth-ranked Penn State and sixth-rated Michigan, the rest of the top 10 in order went: Southern California, Texas, UCLA and Arizona State. Louisiana State, ranked in the top 10 all season, dropped to 14th after losing its season finale to Tulane.

Nebraska and Texas Tech led the second ten in a tie for No. 11, while Houston was 13th, LSU 14th, Kansas and Tulane tied for 15th, Miami of Ohio 17th and Maryland, San Diego State and Florida all tied for 18th.

Even more impressive than Alabama's 11-0 record (which featured four shutouts and a 776 drubbing of Virginia Tech), was the endless wealth of talent Bryant was able to call upon every week. In the backfield alone, Bryant frequently employed as many as 12 different performers per game with no noticeable loss of efficiency.

Case in point: Alabama's first team backfield of Gary Rutledge, Wilbur Jackson, Randy Billingsley and Ellis Beck accounted for 1,682 yards, 22 touchdowns and an average of 5.7 yards per carry. The second stringers, however, turned out 1,320 yards, nine TDs and an average of 6.2 yards per carry, while the "scrubs" picked up 1,180 yards, 12 touchdowns and 7.6 yards per carry.

Jackson, a 6-2, 195-pound senior, was undoubtedly one of the finest running backs in the country, but he was able to carry the ball only 95 times all year and that hurt his chances for All America or Heisman Trophy consideration. Still, he managed to lead the Tide with 752 yards and eight touchdowns.

. . . BUT WRITERS TO MAKE FINAL DECISION AFTER BOWLS

By The Associated Press

The Sugar Bowl showdown New Year's Eve will feature the two highest-ranking teams eligible for post-season play— No. 1 Alabama and No. 3 Notre Dame.

Notre Dame vaulted past Ohio State and Michigan into third place behind Alabama and Oklahoma, ineligible for a bowl game, in The Associated Press poll Tuesday.

The winner of the Sugar Bowl game probably will be national champion. There will be a final poll after the bowl games.

Alabama, which ended an 11-0 regular season by beating Auburn 35-0 last Saturday, got 24 first-place votes and 1,090 points in balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Oklahoma, ineligible for a bowl appearance because of recruiting violations, received 17 first-ilace votes and 1,023 points after whipping Oklahoma State 45-18 for a 10-0-1 final record.

Notre Dame recieved two first-place votes and 810 points. The Fighting Irish finished the regular season 10-0, unbeaten and untied for the first time since 1949.

Ohio State, 9-0-1 got two first-place votes and 799 points for fourth place, and was followed by Michigan, 10-0-1, with one first-place ballot and 780 points and Penn State, 11-0, with three first-place votes and 679 points.

Ohio State will play No. 7 Southern California in the Rose Bowl while Penn State will go to the Orange Bowl to face Louisiana State, which was upset 14-0 by Tulane and dropped from eighth to 13th.

Creighton Rolls Past S.D. State

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Creighton scored 12 straight points early to establish command en route to a 95-68 basketball victory over South Dakota State Tuesday night.

The Creighton spurt turned an early 6-6 tie into an 18-6 margin after four minutes, and the Bluejays went to a 52-27 halftime margin.

South Dakota State was more effective with a pressing defense in the second half, but Creighton was able to maintain control.

Creighton got balanced scoring. Ted Wuebben led with 19, Gene Harmon had 16, Doug Brookins 15 and Ralph Bobik 12.

Southeast's McNaught Not Bothered By Inexperience

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer
(One of a Series)

While wholesale inexperience concerns three of Lincoln's Class A basketball coaches, Southeast coach Wally McNaught has decided not to worry.

"I've always felt if you have a good nuclues returning, why worry what others have?" offers McNaught. "We're a little shy of experience, too, but I think we have a good nucleus."

Senior Rick Reynolds, who earned first team all-city status last March, and 6-5 senior Gary Gilson are returning Knight regulars. John Lohrberg, a promising 6-3 candidate, is another returning letterman.

"We anticipate great leadership from our lettermen," says McNaught, who faces a rugged December schedule. The Knights play co-city favorites East and Northeast, then tackle East Big 10 favorite Fremont and West Big 10 favorite North Platte.

"I know it's already been said by others, but if we can get by December without getting burned badly, I think our club will come of age enough to be good by January," analyzes McNaught.

"If we go into the Christmas break, having split, I won't be discouraged," he adds. "But if we fall flat on our faces, it'll be tough to bounce back in January."

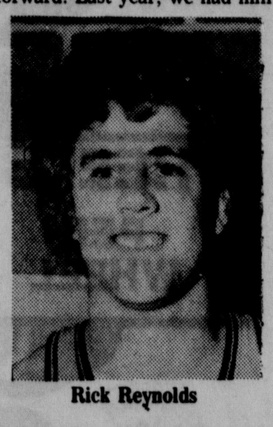

If Reynolds plays to his capabilities, Southeast should be able to compete favorably. He led the Knights in scoring last season with a 17-point average.

"He's improved his quickness and his shooting seems to be better," reports McNaught. "We intend to use him more as a swingman so he can go outside as a guard and inside as a forward. Last year, we had him principally inside."

A healthier Gilson and an improved Lohrberg should free Reynolds more. Gilson, a starter at the end of his sophomore season, was set back last season by a serious case of viral pneumonia and a severe thigh contusion.

McNaught says he could go with two lineups — one with good size and one relatively short. "That will be dictated by who we face and what combination works together the best.

Randy Cipriano, son of Nebraska basketball coach Joe Cipriano, and Tom McNaught, Wally's son, were the starting guards on last year's 11-5 Southeast reserve team. Fred Schmid, Hal Dobson, Don Keller and Gregg Young are other promising prospects from that team.

Jaynes Named To West Team

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Twelve Pacific-8 Conference players are on the West team which All-American quarterback David Jaynes of Kansas will lead against the East in the 49th annual Shrine Football Classic here Dec. 29.

Lynn "Pappy" Waldorf, head of player selection for the West, said the team has "the most explosive West offense in many a year." He announced his choices Tuesday.

Stanford's Mike Boryla is backup for Jaynes at quarterback, and the runners are James McAlister of UCLA, Ken Grandberry of Washington State and Bo Matthews of Colorado.

Quarterback Danny White of Arizona State, which plays in the Fiesta Bowl Dec. 21 against Pitt, is on the team as a punter and is not expected to handle any quarterbacking duties.

Jaynes and Boryla, who have thrown 66 touchdown passes in their combined careers, will have some outstanding receivers as targets. Steve Odom of Utah, Roger Carr of Louisiana Tech and Delvin Williams of Kansas are wide receivers, and James Cain of Colorado is at tight end.

UCLA, Stanford, Washington State and Kansas have three players each on the squad, Oregon has two, and California placed offensive tackle-guard Ted Seifert. West will have a Pac-8 coach, Jim Sweeney of Washington State.

Other offensive linemen are Pill Reid, Stanford, center; Tim Guy of Oregon and Tom Wickert of Washington State, tackles; and Greg Horton of Colorado, guard. Place-kicker Rod Garcia of Stanford completes the offensive lineup.

With Sandifer on the defensive line are ends Bill Kollar of Montana State and Glenn Robinson of Oklahoma State and tackle Larry Bailey of Pacific. The linebackers are Matt Blair of Iowa State, Cleveland Vann of Oklahoma State and Don Goode of Kansas.

Court Voids Seitchick Rule

Lancaster District Judge William Hastings Tuesday held void an order of the Nebraska State Athletic Commission suspending an Omaha amateur boxer from boxing activities until March, 1974.

Judge Hastings in his ruling the case brought by Omaha amateur boxer Jon Symonette said the defendant Seymoure Seitchick, commissioner of the Nebraska Athletic Commission, acted in excess of his authority and jurisdiction.

Seitchick had ordered that Symonette be suspended from participating in amateur boxing activities in the state until March 10, 1974 or until the end of the 1974 Golden Glove Tournament, whichever was later.

Seitchick's action results from Symonette's alleged striking of another boxer over the head with a chair as the other boxer came out of the shower following the bout which he had won.

Symonette contended that nowhere in the "Special Amateur Boxing Rules" was there a provision for suspension of amateurs.

He alleged in the petition that the attorney general had stated that the commissioner did not have authority to take direct action against an amateur boxer for unsportsmanlike conduct, but the commissioners proceeded to take the action which he charged as being arbitrary and capricious.

NSAA Slates Thursday Meeting

Kearney — The Nebraska School Activities Associations' dual-purpose monthly meeting, scheduled here for Tuesday night and Wednesday, has been postponed because of inclement weather.

The groups' Board of Control, which was to discuss the energy crisis among other routine matters Tuesday night, is now scheduled to meet Thursday morning in Lincoln.

The NSAA state football playoff study committee, which was to formulate a basic proposal Wednesday, likely won't get that done until mid-January.

"It was almost impossible to find time for the meeting before Christmas. So we probably won't be able to get to the playoff situation until January," NSAA executive secretary Les Chamberlin said.

Priddy To Admit Bomb Threats

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former major league baseball player Jerry Priddy will admit he made threats to bomb a cruise liner but only because his family had been threatened, the defense said at trial opening Tuesday.

The one-time second baseman for four top teams pleaded not guilty to charges of extortion against the Princess Lines last June when he told their executives that time bombs were set to go off aboard the Island Princess sailing off Mexico.

Attorney Paul Caruso, in an opening statement to the jury and U.S. District Court Judge Irving Hill, said Priddy would freely admit he made the threatening calls and arranged for a pickup of a quarter million dollars in cash last June 5.

Caruso said Priddy, 53, became involved in the extortion attempt because a mysterious man had threatened Priddy's life and that of "his wife, his two daughters, and his five grandchildren" if he did not act as a front in the plot.

Caruso said the threats to Priddy were made by telephone and that the defense does not know to this day the identity of the caller.

Two "suspicous packages," were found on the bridge and in the engine room of the Island Princess that afternoon but they were thrown overboard without ever being examined to determine whether they actually were explosives.

Caruso told newsmen he intended to call as character witnesses for Priddy fellow members of the exclusive Lakeside Golf Club including Bob Hope, Gene Autry, Gene Mauch, manager of the Montreal Expos, Bob Lemon, one-time star pitcher with the Cleveland Indians and Dick Wittinghill a Los Angeles radio disc jockey.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Leslie Osborne said his job of establishing that Priddy did make the threatening phone calls had been made unnecessary by Priddy's forthcoming admissions.

Osborne opened his case by calling executives of the Princess Lines who received Priddy's phone calls and an FBI agent, posing as a company bookkeeper who arranged to leave a suitcase with $250,000 in $10, $20, $50 and $10 bills in a trash can behind Priddy's office building.

Priddy was arrested in his office the evening of June 5.

Caruso told newsmen that Autry, Mauch and others would testify that Priddy had been behaving in a very peculiar manner for several days before his arrest.

Maloney Releases Syracuse Coaches

Syracuse, N.Y. (AP) — Syracuse University football coach Frank Maloney said Tuesday he was releasing the entire assistant coaching staff that served under Ben Schwartzwalder, who retired at the end of this season.

Seven assistant coaches and a parttime student football assistant are involved in the mass dismissal.

Peru State Falls To Missourians

ROLLA, Mo. (AP)—Two second-half rallies by the visiting Peru State Wildcats fell short Tuesday night as the University of Missouri at Rolla took a 96-80 home-floor, non-conference win.

Down 52-40 at half, Peru, led by Bill Hunter, Ron Winston and Oscar Porter, managed to pull within six points of their hosts twice, but several momentary defensive lapses sent the visitors to their second defeat in three outings.

Hunter finished the night with 20 points, while Winston canned 16 and Porter 18.

Ken Stalling was the big gun for the winners, notching 26 points as the Miners cruised to their second win in three starts. Four other Miners were in double figures, including Tom Noel and Bob Kissack, who added 16 each.

PERU STATE (80) — W. Hunter 20, Beville 12, Porter 18, Winston 16, Craig 4, Minor 2, L. Hunter 2, Sanders 4, Parker 2.
MISSOURI—ROLLA (96) — Vessell 10, McKenzie 2, Stalling 26, Noel 16, Kissack 16, Locke 15, Stanley 6, Fricke 4.
Halftime: Missouri-Rolla 52, Peru State 40.

Weber St. Tips Doane

OGDEN, Utah (AP)—Host Weber State of Ogden, a mountain states powerhouse, handed winless Doane of Nebraska its fourth basketball defeat Tuesday night, 68-52.

Doane rallied from a 41-24 halftime deficit but the closest the Tigers could come was to within 11 points before Weber State pulled away again.

Weber had much the better of it statistically, 42 to 32 per cent on fild goal tries and 63 to 34 in rebounding.

Al DeWitt scored 16 points and Steve Fleming 14 for Weber State, now 2-1. Joe Warton led Doane with 10.

DOANE (52)—Wharton 10, Peart 9, Westover 6, Cousins 5, Couch 4, Hogan 4, Wolatz 4, McLaughlin 2, Rehn 2, Ganzel 2, Thieman 2, Johnston 2.

Halftime: Weber St. 41, Doane 24.

'Randle To Coach Virginia Football'

Raleigh, N.C. (AP) — East Carolina University football coach Sonny Randle, whose team won two consecutive Southern Conference championships, will become head coach at the University of Virginia, the Raleigh News and Observer said Tuesday night.

The newspaper said the selection of Randle, a star receiver at Virginia in the late 1950s, will be announced by Virginia Athletic director Gene Corrigan at a late morning press conference in Charlottesville Wednesday.

St. Louis Topples Cowboys

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Junior Billy Morris' free shot snapped a 46-46 tie with five minutes remaining and helped St. Louis University repell a late Oklahoma State threat, 54-48, in interconference basketball Tuesday night.

The Billikens, boosting their record to 2-0, were in apparent command at 44-34 with 10 minutes to go before freshman Ronnie Daniels and Sophomore Mark Steinmeyer, a pair of flashy guards, sparked an Oklahoma State rally.

The 6-foot-1 Hackmann paced a balanced St. Louis attack with 15 points to 14 for Jones and 10 by teammate Lewis McKinney.

Kevin Fitzgerald had 14 points and Daniels 10 for Oklahoma State, which hit 48 per cent of its shots to the Billikens' 43.1 per cent.

OKLAHOMA STATE (48)—Daniels 10, Fitzgerald 14, Hopson 8, Kincaide 4, Threatt 2, McCaffrey 0, Steinmeyer 6, Duckett 4.
ST. LOUIS (54)—Morris 9, McKinney 10, Jones 14, Ries 2, Hackman 15, Walsh 4.

Hawley Nears Jockey Mark

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Sandy Hawley rode winners in the last three races at Laurel Race Course Tuesday and pulled to within one of Bill Shoemaker's all-time one-year record of 485 victories.

The Canadian jockey, who won the North American riding title in 1970 and 1972, failed on four mounts before finishing the nine-race program with a flourish.

Hawley won with Jane Lacy in the seventh race, paying $7, followed with Jet Again at $3.20 in the feature, and then finished with a neck victory on Hail's Song in the ninth race.

Cyclones Humble Coyotes

AMES, Iowa (AP)—Iowa State started slowly but caught fire midway through the first half and went on to a convincing 103-67 non-conference basketball victory over South Dakota here Tuesday night.

"I was disappointed with the play of our starters in the first half," said Cyclone Coach Maury Johm, "but they played better in the second half."

Transfer Robert Wilson led ISU scorers with 23 points while Larry Loots had 18 and Wes Harris 14.

That trio also pulled down 29 rebounds to help the Cyclones to a whopping 59-41 advantage on the backboards.

"I was glad to be able to get all the players in the game," John added. "We were unable to do that in our opener against Western Illinois."

John praised reserve guard Mike Capobianco, who came off the bench and had seven assists. "He helps us with his penetration on offense," John said.

Gorman Upsets Nastase

BOSTON (UPI) — Tom Gorman, a failure in the Davis Cup last week, Tuesday pulled the first major upset of the $50,000 Masters Tennis Tournament when he beat defending champion Ilie Nastase of Romania in straight sets.

Gorman beat Nastase 6-4, 6-1 to register his second win over the Romanian in 18 attempts and end Nastase's run of 11 straight victories in Masters play dating back to Paris in 1971.

In another match involving the blue group, John Newcombe of Australia beat Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia 6-4, 6-1; while in the white group Tom Okker of the Netherlands beat Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C., 7-6 6-3 and Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill., beat Manuel Orantes of Spain 6-3, 6-2.

Nastase, who had shouted, "I'm the champ," when he ordered cameramen to stop shooting pictures during the rallies after Gorman had indicated he had no objection. But, from that point, Gorman's game improved beyond recognition from the man who had stumbled to defeat against Australia in the Davis Cup finals in Cleveland last week.

Santo Nixes Trade To Angels

HOUSTON (UPI) — Outfielder Merv Rettenmund and left-handed pitcher Ross Grimsley switched ball clubs in the big five-player swap of the day between Baltimore and Cincinati Tuesday, but the deal that generated far more comment was the one involving Ron Santo, which didn't come off.

Rettenmund, who became expendable with the emergence of Al Bumbry, the American League Rookie of the Year, was sent to the Reds along with minor leaguers Junior Kennedy and Bill Woods in exchange for Grimsley and minor league catcher Wallace Williams.

The Reds-Orioles deal was the second five-player trade of the day. In the first, the Kansas City Royals, trading "tomorrow for today," obtained veteran pitcher Nelson Briles and infielder Fernando Gonzalez from the Pittsburgh Pirates in exchange for catcher-outfielder Ed Kirkpatrick, infielder Kurt Bevacqua and minor league first baseman Winston Cole.

Talks between the Cubs and Angels began with California offering two young left-handed pitchers, Andy Hassler and Bruce Heinbechner, for Santo. The Cubs, seeking much more for their 14-year veteran third baseman, asked for veteran southpaw hurler Rudy May and outfielder-infielder Bob Oliver.

The two sides were finally near agreement, but Santo quickly ended any possible deal when he became the first player to exercise his rights under the new rules of the Basic Agreement. The Agreement states any player with at least 10 years in the majors and the last five with the same club has the right to decide whether he will report to another team in the event of a trade.

"It was Ron's decision at this time to remain with the Cubs' organization in whatever capacity will be in the best interests of the team," said the team's executive vice president John Holland.

Rettenmund, 30, batted .262 last season in 95 games with nine home runs and 44 runs batted in, while being platooned. A former Ball State college running back who was once drafted by the Dallas Cowboys, Rettenmund joined the Orioles in late 1968 and has a .284 lifetime batting average.

Grimsley, 23, was 13-10 for the Reds in 1973, his third season in the majors. He has a lifetime record of 37-25 and in 1973 posted an earned run average of 3.24 in 38 games.

"We wanted a right-handed hitting outfielder and Rettenmund was our No. 1 choice," said Reds' manager Sparky Anderson. "Right now, I've got the same plans for him as Baltimore did, but that could change in the spring and he might wind up a full-time player."

Anderson said he was able to trade Grimsley since he wants to go with a four-man starting rotation of Jack Billingham, Don Gullett, Fred Norman and Clay Kirby, who was recently acquired from San Diego in exchange for Bobby Tolan.

"Five men in the starting rotation is just too many, but in case we need another starter or two, we still have (Gary) Nolan and (Roger) Nelson who I am still counting on," Anderson added.

Unlike Anderson's thinking about a five-man starting rotation, Frank Cashen, the Orioles' general manager said his team would go with five starters now that Grimsley has been added to the regular rotation of Jim Palmer, Dave McNally, Mike Cuellar and Doyle Alexander.

"With the designated hitter, pitchers are now forced to go a lot longer, that's why I think we need a five-man rotation," said Cashen.

Kennedy and Woods, both 23, are products of the Baltimore farm system. Kennedy, a shortstop, started the 1973 season at Rochester of the International League where he hit .219 in 58 games and then was sent to Indianapolis of the American Association, where he batted .282 in 46 games. Woods hit .239 with the Miami Orioles in the Florida State League.

Williams, 18, was the Reds' third choice in last June's free agent draft and hit .275 for Cincinnati's Gulf Coast League franchise.

The Kansas City-Pittsburgh deal saw the Royals give up some of their younger players for an established starting pitcher in Briles.

"The thing that kept us from winning the division title last season was a lack of pitching," said Royals manager Jack McKeon, whose club finished second to Oakland in the American League West.

Briles, 30, and a nine-year major league veteran, was 14-13 last season and led the Pirates in starts (33), complete games (7) and innings pitched (219).

"Kirkpatrick has that line-drive ability and he's going to be my Jack-of-all-trades player," said Pirate manager Danny Murtaugh. Kirkpatrick hit .263 for the Royals last season.

"He gives me another left-handed pinch hitter," Murtaugh added. "He gives me a second-string catcher and when he comes in to pinch-hit, he is the kind of player we can leave in the game."

'Motor Racing To Flourish'

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — The race director for one of the Midwest's largest speedways predicts that despite the energy crisis, motor car racing will continue to flourish next summer across the United States.

Marion Robinson, who heads up the Knoxville Speedway in Knoxville, Iowa, said "certain modifications" will have to be made by promoters but that the American public will continue to flock to the races every weekend despite the gasoline shortage.

"Many racing cars burn alcohol instead of gasoline, so there won't be a problem there," Robinson said. "For the cars that do burn gasoline, I don't think there will be any pressure from the public to ban racing cars to save on fuel."

Robinson said people attending football games on the weekend "burn a lot more gasoline just getting to the games" than drivers do during a night of any type of championship racing.

He said the major concern of promoters in the Midwest, as in other parts of the country, is the ability of the average spectator to get to and from the speedway because of the likely ban on gasoline sales on the weekends.

"We may be forced at our speedways at Knoxville and Newton to change our programs from the traditional Saturday night to maybe Saturday afternoon," Robinson said.

"Getting gas for these larger campers that come from far away will be tough, but we imagine that we'll have to rely on the people from the surrounding communities to support us as they always have."

Robinson said it is still "too early" to determine what actual effect the energy crisis will have on the financial picture of many of the "middle sized" tracks across the country.

"Unless Uncle Sam comes down and forces the races to close down this summer, everyone I have talked to around the country has indicated that he plans to remain open," Robinson said. "We'll have to play it by ear."

Doane Leads All-NIAC Grid Team

Doane placed three players on the offensive team and four on the defensive unit. There were 12 players on the first-team offense and 14 on the defense because of ties.

Ends John Green, guard Dan Graves and back Floyd Guillory were the Doane players on the offensive unit with linemen Donovan Broussard and Mark Alderman, linebacker Jeff Mollring and back Ron Bauer on the defensive group.

Hastings and Midland each placed five players on the NIAC all-star first unit, Nebraska Wesleyan had four, Concordia three and Dana two.

The complete first-team offense is ends Duane Spale, Midland, and John Green, Doane, tackles Julius Harrell, Midland, and Dennis Butler, Nebraska Wesleyan, guards Bob Jones, Dana, and Dan Graves, Doane, center Bob Zweig, Midland, quarterback Ross Stephenson, Nebraska Wesleyan, flankerback Dave Dirrim, Hastings, and backs Gary Filipi, Hastings, Spencer Gilbert, Midland, and Floyd Guillory, Doane.

OU, Creighton Rated Tourney Favorites

Omaha — Oklahoma and Creighton rate the favorites' tags in the Friday night opening games of the first Creighton Cage Classic, sponsored by Big Brothers Association of Omaha and Council Bluffs.

Oklahoma, featuring Big Eight Conference Player of the Year Alvan Adams, is selected over San Diego State, a club which apparently has found great support in new faces for super soph Steve Copp.

Creighton is given a slight edge against Air Force Academy, though the Rich Nickelson-led Falcons will be a stern test of whether Creighton's rangy guards can handle tough defensive pressure.

Count the Saturday night final a toss-up, whether the two favorites make it or not. Game time both Friday and Saturday is 7 and 9 p.m. in the Civic Auditorium Arena.

Big 8 Football Attendance Up

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) — Big Eight conference universities averaged 49,556 fans for each home football date this fall, topping last year's record by nearly 1,500 per game, conference officials announced Tuesday.

The eight member institutions played before nearly 93 per cent capacity. The 1972 average was 47,088 per outing.

For 44 home dates, the attendance was 2,180,481, which was just short of last year's record of 2,209,381 for three more home dates.

In addition, Kansas, Oklahoma State and Missouri established regular season attendance records and single-game marks.

LES Sponsors Insulation Display

Other Lincoln power consumers, fretting and concerned about shivering and saving heat in their homes, stopped in at the Lincoln Electric System (LES), which sponsored displays where six insulation representatives explained how to insulate homes to save money and energy.

About 150 people saw the displays on Monday and bad weather Tuesday cut the attendance about in half. The people weren't as interested in how much insulation costs as in "what to do and how to do it," said L. D. (Bud) Robinson of National Insulation.

"It's amazing how much the public doesn't know" about conserving energy, said Tim Callinan, Certain-Teed Products Corp. territory manager of Grand Island.

He said the insulation representatives weren't selling: "We're just informing the public."

7½-8¢ A Foot

Callinan explained that a do-it-yourselfer can insulate and attic — where most heat escapes — for about 7½-8 cents a square foot, or have it done professionally for about 15 cents a square foot.

He said his home, built in 1923, is heated by gas. Swihart noted he wanted to reduce his heating and air conditioning bills. "We've had more problems with our air conditioner (bill) running more than our heating running too much."

He said he was getting some good hints.

"I've been in the (insulation) business 17 years and I've never seen anybody take the bull by the horns and promote the insulation industry like the Lincoln Electric System," Robinson said.

Cut Power Needs

The primary reason LES sponsored the displays, said Thomas E. Arkfeld, LES power engineer, is to encourage insulating homes, which will save energy and reduce LES power requirements for cooling homes in summer.

In an informational flyer, LES reported that if a 1,300-square-foot home is adequately insulated, the average annual cost to run an electric air conditioner can be reduced from $91 rate without insulation to $60.

For winter worriers, LES also reports that the average annual cost to heat the same home with electric heat would be $156 (at current rates). Adding double glass windows and storm doors would reduce that rate to $119. Heating the same home with no insulation would cost $457, or $338 more, according to LES.

Callinan said with full insulation, a Lincoln home-owner could save between $60-80 annually, compared to his cost with only minimal insulation.

The six types of insulation on display at LES all cost about the same, he said, but he warned that even though insulation supplies are plentiful, transportation problems now are making insulation "very tough to get."

Borman Chosen

Dr. Dennis R. Bormann, associate professor of speech-communication at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, has been named chief coordinator and planner for the Fourth Biennial Conference on Communication to be held in Germany in the summer of 1974.

Store Charges Theft Of $2,000

A 21-year-old "cash counter" at the Miller and Paine Department Store has been charged in Lancaster County Court with grand larceny in connection with the alleged theft of about $2,000 from the store.

Connie Yeung, of Centennial Hall at Nebraska Wesleyan University, waived a preliminary hearing and was bound over to Lancaster District Court. Bond was set at $4,000.

Long Break Not Planned At University

It probably will not be necessary to extend the Dec. 21 to Jan. 14 interim at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Vice Chancellor Miles Tommeraasen said.

There were rumors that the vacation break between semesters might be extended in a fuel conservation move.

Tomeraasen said other rumors that the university's fuel oil supplies are dangerously low are untrue.

UNL Chancellor James Zumberge and other university officials will report to the regents Thursday on the energy crisis.

From now until the end of the academic year the university will burn about three million gallons of fuel, the vice chancellor said. He added that it has a million and a half gallons on hand or on the way.

He described the overall situation "better than expected" a few months ago. He said railroads and refineries have been doing a good job in their efforts to supply the university.

In an effort to conserve fuel the university will lower temperatures to 50 degrees in most of its residence halls during the between semester period Dec. 22-Jan. 9.

Dr. Richard C. Armstrong, director of housing, said special provisions will be made for foreign students and graduate students who will remain in residence halls during the interim period.

Lowering the temperatures 15 to 20 degrees during the interim should result in a "significant" reduction in fuel requirements, Armstrong said.

Insurance Rates Won't Reflect Speed Cut Results For A Time

By The Associated Press

Even if lowered speed limits reduce the number and severity of automobile accidents, those benefits will not be reflected in lower automobile insurance rates for some time, a state insurance department spokesman said Tuesday.

"There might be a day when this would show itself in reduced rates," said James O'Hara, supervisor of claims and inquiry.

"But automobile policies are generally forecast on a three year rate experience. We would probably have to be into this for a year and half or two years before it would make a rate impact — provided the lower speed limits did make a difference."

At this point, O'Hara said, no one really knows what effect reduced speeds will have and how long they will be in effect.

"Most of our driving is still going to be done in town, and most of our property damage is still going to result from town driving. That's not going to change."

O'Hara noted that safety organizations traditionally have recommended that passenger auto speeds be somewhat above truck speed limits for safety reasons. President Nixon's proposal of a 55 mile per hour limit for trucks, 50 mph for cars, runs contrary to this concept, and could have an effect.

Automobile insurance rates are based on so many factors that speculating on the effects of a possible change in one of the factors is a risky business, O'Hara said.

Any lowering of damage costs could be offset by inflation generally — by higher costs of repair parts and labor, higher administrative costs within insurance companies, fluctuations in the number of automobiles and their ability to withstand impact, and other factors.

"We have been very fortunate the last couple of years in Nebraska," O'Hara said. "Our experience has been good and rates have not been going up — at least like they were three or four years ago."

State Puts Iowa Plan Into Effect For Fuel

Shortly after noon Tuesday Nebraska's energy chief notified major diesel and heating oil distributors that the state put into effect a plan developed by Iowa on the handling of the 10% emergency reserves.

State Tax Commissioner William Peters, acting as Gov. J. J. Exon's top energy officer, informed the major suppliers of the move via telegrams following a meeting with the governor.

The telegrams requested the firms hold at terminal points Nebraska's 10% reserves, which will be dispersed on a hardship cases basis.

The state's decision to implement the Iowa plan, which has federal approval in that state, was announced by Peters during a legislative energy hearing Monday.

The difference between Iowa and Nebraska, however, is that Nebraska has neither asked nor received federal approval.

Peters said it was decided best not to run the risk of being denied approval.

The decision to adopt the Iowa plan was prompted by the state's not being able to locate the theoretical 10% fuel reserves for distribution purposes.

Need For Added Coal, Nuclear Power Is Seen

Omaha, (AP) — Americans will have to start using more coal and nuclear produced power to combat the energy shortage, an attorney advisor to the U.S. Secretary of Interior told Omaha businessmen Tuesday.

There will have to be "some environmental trade-offs" to bring about more use of coal, said W. Tyson Whiteside, adviser to the Missouri River basin.

The country now is getting more energy from burning fire wood than from nuclear power plants, he said. The share of nuclear produced power will have to be boosted from the present 1% to about 20%, he said.

Although coal accounts for 90% of the country's fossil fuel supply, it amounts to only 15% of energy used, Whiteside said.

"Trade-offs" will have to include less strict regulations on coal strip mining that are contained in a bill approved by the Senate and pending in the House, he said.

The bill would prohibit strip mining where the federal government only holds the mineral rights and a private party owns the land surface.

Long-term variances for strip mining will have to be offered or companies won't spend the billions of dollars necessary to develop new coal sources, he said. It takes about five years to develop a mine.

But the government still can insist on strict requirements for reclamation of the land once it has been mined, Whiteside said.

There also will have to be more exploration along the outer continental shelf for oil sources, he said. Only 2% of the shelf now is under lease, he said.

Gas rationing is only a last resort in the energy conservation program, Whiteside said.

Kimball Receives Bad News On Fuel Supply

Kimball (AP) — This western Nebraska community has received some very bad energy news.

The diesel fuel operator which supplies fuel for the power plant and generators said the December allocation had been cut to 73% of that used in 1972.

City Administrator Bob Arraj said Tuesday that all street lighting in Kimball would be cut back by 60% in residential areas, starting Tuesday night.

Only enough power will be allowed, he said, to maintain security. There also will be no further outdoor Christmas lighting in the city.

Arraj said the trouble could spread to any other Nebraska community which generates its own power.

The generators are sparked by diesel fuel, which in turn ignites the primary fuel, natural gas. Kimball is a so-called interruptible customer of Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Co.

If the gas supply is interrupted, Kimball would have to rely entirely on diesel fuel. The 14,000 gallons it gets for December could be used up in a couple of days.

Clean Air Rules Not Objected To

. . . At Federal Hearing

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

No objections were voiced Tuesday at a hearing on Federal Environmental Protection Agency air quality control regulations covering major facilities which may indirectly produce air pollution.

But the State Department of Environmental Control has scheduled its own hearing Dec. 14 on state regulations which are expected to receive approval from the federal agency.

Those regulations are essentially the same as the EPA proposals, according to Richard Hansen, department counsel.

"There are no significant differences," he told newsmen following the brief federal hearing.

Effective Rules

Thus, the state regulations are likely to become the binding rules with DEC acting as the enforcement agency.

Indirect sources of air pollution include shopping centers, highways and roads, parking lots and garages, recreational centers, amusement parks, sports stadiums, airports and commercial or industrial development.

Much of the air pollution from such facilities results from vehicular traffic.

Federal EPA representatives said federal regulations would be rescinded "as soon as Nebraska submits an acceptable plan."

If state regulations were unacceptable, EPA rules would take effect and the federal agency would become the regulatory body.

Could Step In

If state regulations are accepted, but not adequately enforced, Hansen noted, the federal agency would "come in and do it themselves."

But, Hansen said, state regulations with state enforcement are the best combination.

"We know Nebraskans better than they do, and we think we're better able to administer the program," he said.

Hansen said the promulgation of state regulations was "somewhat tardy," but only because DEC was "awaiting a clear definition of the meaning of significant deterioration" of air quality.

A recent federal court order has held that the 1970 Clean Air Act prohibits significant deterioration of air quality, in effect requiring more strict air pollution control standards in clean air areas than might be required elsewhere.

The "indirect source" air pollution standards are aimed at designated areas in which there is a potential for exceeding any national pollution control standard within 10 years.

Blaze Fatal To Omahan

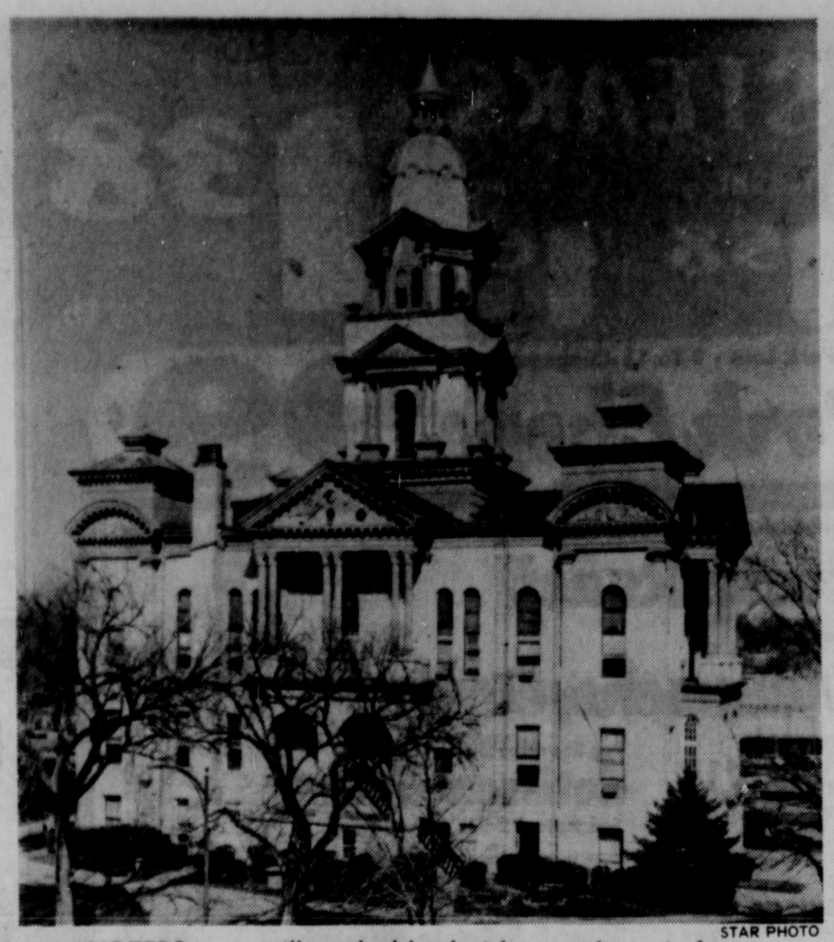

Omaha (AP) — A 36-year-old Omaha man was dead on arrival at a hospital Monday night after a fire in a North Omaha building. He was identified as Jerry Mitchell.

A fire spokesman said Mitchell was sleeping in the back room of a building used for a delivery service when the fire broke out, possibly from careless smoking.

The spokesman said there was an estimated $2,500 damage to the building.

Huge To Speak

Jim Huge, principal at Lincoln East Junior-Senior High Schools, will be the guest speaker at the Optimist Club of Lincoln's regular meeting at noon Thursday at the Elks Club. Huge will talk about Lincoln secondary schools and national trends in education.

York County Courthouse Issue May Be On Ballot

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

York — York County's five-member board of commissioners, left twisting slowly in the wind by the inconclusive outcome of a newspaper poll, will probably put the issue of renovation or replacement of the historic county courthouse on the spring primary ballot.

A mail-in preference poll conducted by the York Daily News-Times received 494 responses. One - hundred - ninety - eight favored a new courthouse on the present site, while 190 supported renovating the present building and constructing additional facilities on the present site.

Another 34 favored constructing a new courthouse around the existing one, razing part of the old building and retaining appropriate parts to maintain its public image. Seventy-two write-ins supporting other possibilities were received, with construction of a new courthouse on another site heading the list with 33 votes.

The poll "didn't give us much to go on," said Commissioner Harley Bergen of Henderson. The small number of responses and the lack of a clear majority for any one alternative added up to an inconclusive expression of public sentiment, he said.

"We have $700,000 in cash from inheritance taxes" and other sources, Bergen said. "We'll probably ask for a couple hundred thousand dollar bond to make (a ballot) legal, and put it on the primary ballot next spring."

The board had hoped for a clearcut expression of public feeling on the issue, since Secretary of State Allen Beermann ruled that a straw-vote ballot on the issue would not be legal.

The commissioners have legal authority to take whatever action they choose, since no bond would be necessary for either major alternative.

An earlier feasibility report estimated the cost of renovation at $623,000; of a new building, $713,000. The building fund is expected to approach $1 million within a year's time with new revenue and interest.

But a bond election would in effect submit the issue to the voters as a referendum.

In the meantime, Bergen said the board would probably "go out looking at a few new courthouses" in other counties, and then "hire an architect and go to work" on detailed planning.

The 87-year-old building, with its 20-foot ceilings, arched windows, classic columns, dome and fancy friezework, is considered a historic landmark by the State Historical Society. The Nebraska Historical Preservation Board has proposed it for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places, and the York County Historical Society has urged its preservation.

But some county employes say its sagging floors, cramped quarters, old-fashioned restrooms, rattling windows and one-thermostat steam heating system make efficient county government difficult.

Fort Calhoun Dedication Called Off

Omaha (UPI) — Formal dedication of the Omaha Public Power District's Fort Calhoun Nuclear Station originally set for Wednesday has been cancelled. OPPD spokesman Fred Peterson said the ceremonies were called off because of Tuesday's snowstorm.

College Executives To Meet

Hastings (AP) — The Nebraska Association of Colleges and Universities will hold its annual meeting here Friday. Top executives of the state's public and private post-secondary schools will attend. D. B. Varner, president of the University of Nebraska, will discuss a possible consortium for the arts among colleges and universities in the state.

Remmers Cited For Ag Efforts

Firth — Elvin Remmers of Firth is one of 14 U.S. farmers named to receive Ford Motor Company's 1974 Ford Farm Efficiency Awards for outstanding agricultural accomplishment. The Lancaster County farmer was winner in the grain sorghum category. Remmers grows more than 300 acres of dryland sorghum yearly with production as high as 100 to 120 bushels per acre. His farming activities also include raising corn on irrigated land; his 1973 corn yielded 150 bushels per acre.

Black Woman Named To School Board

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha School Board on a 9-to-2 vote has approved Mrs. Rugh P. Thomas as a member. She is the second black woman to be chosen for the board. Her selection capped a nearly two-month search to find a successor to Joseph M. Hart Sr., who retired for health reasons. Mrs. Thomas, 53, is the mother of three high school graduates and holds degrees from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. She is a mortician.

Extended Holiday Vacation Rejected

Omaha (AP) — The District 66 Board of Education unanimously rejected a proposal that the Christmas recess be extended to conserve fuel. Lance Margolin, president of the Westside High School Student Forum, and Bob Eisenberg, senior representative for the district's student advisory board, presented 500 forms signed by parents saying they were "interested" in having their children return to school Jan. 7 instead of Jan. 3 as currently scheduled. There are about 2,400 students in Westside High. Supt. H. Vaughn Phelps said, "The energy used by 25 cars going to Colorado and back for skiing would be greater than all the energy burned in the schools in two days."

Democratic State Committee To Review New Consititution

By ODELL HANSON
Associated Press Writer

A proposed new constitution for Nebraska's Democratic party, notable for the new emphasis given party organization at the congressional district level, will receive a final review here Saturday from the state central committee.

The constitution, successor to "rules and procedures" which now guide the party, will be submitted for formal adoption at the state party convention next June.

Although rules do not require that the central committee approve the document, but merely receive it, Hess Dyas, state chairman said he hopes the group will forward it to the convention with recommendations.

A revision committee has been at work for nearly a year on the constitution. It already has been reviewed three times by the executive committee and twice by the central committee, with revisions resulting.

A major change inherent in the document is the development "of a more indentifiable congressional district organization," Dyas said in an interview. Each district would have a chairman and associate chairman.

Dyas sees the district organizations playing a key role in recruiting congressional candidates and helping finance campaigns.

An informal effort to strengthen congressional district organizations has gone on for the past year and a half, he said. District caucuses, although not required, have been a feature of central committee meetings. And at a central committee meeting at North Platte Sept. 16, 3rd congressional district Democrats put on a fund raising dinner which netted between $13,000 and $14,000. The money is being held for next year's 3rd congressional district nominee.

The new constitution also would enlarge the state executive committee by adding an associate chairman, of the opposite sex to the chairman, plus chairmen and associate chairmen from each of the congressional districts.

Although the party has not had a constitution, its "rules and procedures" document has served the purpose. However it contains both general and detailed regulatons, "very difficult to change," Dyas said. The new constitution provides "a basic kind of structure." More detailed procedures for the state convention, central committee and other components can be written into bylaws or rules, he said.

Confrontation Anticipated By Sugar Beet Growers

Richard W. Blake of Washington, executive vice president of the organization, said delegates will make suggestions for Congress concerning the Sugar Act, which is up for review next year.

The present Sugar Act expires in December of 1974.

Blake said he feels the sugar beet industry is headed for a confrontation with the administration because of its plan to scrap the Sugar Act and turn to a free market-oriented program.

He said sugar beets are one of the most difficult crops to raise and "we cannot operate under a free market like other agricultural commodities."

Robert C. Holmes of Nyssa, Ore., federation president, said he believes 1974 will be one of agriculture's most promising years "if we can iron out some critical problems."

Holmes cited the possibility of fuel and fertilizer shortages as two of the most serious threats to beet growers in the coming year.

Drug Caper Fails To Start At Scottsbluff

Scottbluff (UPI) — Police have solved a drug caper before it actually became a caper. It was all handled at the police station.

A police spokesman said a Scottsbluff resident walked into the police department Sunday night and said, "I saw the light. I quit." The man turned materials over to the stunned officers and then left.

Police said the items left behind included one plastic sack of less than a pound of marijuana, one 35mm film can containing marijuana seeds, four or five sugar-cube-size tabs of hashish and smoking pipes and other equipment.

The police spokesman said the man was not arrested and his identity will not be revealed.

Omaha Police Book Driver Involved In Fatal 2-Car Crash

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—One of two drivers involved in a fatal two-car collision early Sunday at a major Omaha street intersection has been booked on suspicion of two counts of motor vehicle homicide, police said.

It hasn't been determined if one of the drivers ran a red light, police said, but Douglas Sakalosky, 18, was booked because he is suspected of driving while under the influence of alcohol, officers said.

Stanley Graham, 16, and Gary Jensen, 19, died as a result of the accident. Both were passengers in a northbound car driven by Gregory Dugan, 18, who was listed in fair condition at a local hospital Tuesday morning.

Sakalosy, driver of a westbound car was also listed in fair condition while a passenger in his car, Eileen D. Higgins, 18, was listed in serious condition, police said.

Funding Opposed By Curtis

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., Tuesday challenged the need for more money by the Senate select committee investigating the Watergate break-in of the Democratic national headquarters.

But despite his efforts, the Senate on a voice vote approved an additional 1500,000 for the committee which Chairman Sam Ervin, D-N.C., said was needed to finish the committee's mission.

Curtis said television hearings of the investigation were "tearing the country apart."

"They can hold hearings from now on and they won't get you anything that will prevent breaking and entering."

Curtis also accused the committee of offering immunity to witnesses willing to involve others and called it "purchased testimony."

"I hope the committee confines its work to legislative matters and not continue this trial by press."

He said the committee, although it has already spent $1 million, has neither recommended legislation nor attempted to delay campaign reform bills which have reached the floor.

"The committee doesn't believe in turning in a verdict until the evidence is in," Ervin replied.

Ervin said the investigation has shown a "drastic need" for major legislation and said the committee would make such recommendations.

Bus Lines Requesting Fare Hikes

Bus lines operating in Nebraska have asked the Public Service Commission to approve a fare increase.

Sought are higher charges for express shipments, a five per cent increase in passenger fares, and permission to initiate a reduced round-trip adult fare for two or more passengers traveling together when the trip begins on Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday.

The application was filed by the National Bus Traffic Association, agent for American Buslines, Arrow Stage Lines, Black Hills Stage Lines, Capital Services, Continental Trailways, Greyhound Lines, PYN Bus Line, Star Bus Line and United Motor Ways, all operating in Nebraska.

An informal hearing is planned Dec. 17. Persons wishing to express views in writing have been asked to send them to the commission before Dec. 14.

Burglary Loss Listed At $1,710

Police Tuesday were investigating the theft of $1,610 worth of stereo equipment and $100 in cash from an apartment occupied by Richard Craig at 534 N. 27th.

Police said the burglar or burglars may have used a credit card to open the door by slipping it between the door jamb and the lock to force the bolt back.

Judge Convicts William Kunstler

CHICAGO (AP) — Defense attorney William M. Kunstler and three of the Chicago 7 defendants were convicted Tuesday of contempt during their riot-conspiracy trial four years ago.

Defense attorney Leonard I. Weinglass and Chicago 7 defendants Thomas C. Hayden and Rennard "Rennie" Davis were acquitted.

Convicted with Kunstler were David T. Dellinger, Abbott "Abbie" Hoffman and Jerry C. Rubin. They face a maximum six-month jail term.

U.S. District Court Judge Edward T. Gignoux, who handed down the convictions in the trial without jury, set sentencing for Thursday.

Kunstler told newsmen he would appeal, adding the contempt trial was "further evidence of government, oppression of the movement bar."

U.S. Attorney James Thompson denied the Justice Department was out to get any lawyer.

"The reason we insisted on a retrial was not to vindicate a judge, not to vindicate the prosecution, but to vindicate a rule of law that maintains the integrity of the courtroom," he said.

Dellinger and Kunstler were convicted on seven specific charges; Rubin and Hoffman were convicted of two.

At the end of the 4½-month conspiracy trial in February 1970, Judge Julius J. Hoffman cited the seven defendants and their lawyers for 175 contempt violations. He imposed prison sentences ranging from two months to four years.

A federal appeals court reversed the sentences, deleted a number of citations and returned the case to the district court for trial. The Justice Department presented 52 counts to Gignoux.

He dropped 26 counts, including all those against the two remaining Chicago 7 defendants, Lee Weiner and John R. Froines, during the course of the contempt trial that began Oct. 29.

Kunstler was convicted for what Gignoux termed "a vicious personal attack" on the court. He cited an instance when Kunstler told Judge Hoffman that a ruling was "the most outrageous thing I've ever heard in a courtroom . . . I'm disgraced to be here."

Kunstler was also convicted for disobeying Judge Hoffman's order not to inform the jury that a witness hadn't been allowed to testify.

Rubin and Hoffman were convicted for wearing judicial robes adorned with a Star of David into the courtroom and later stepping on the robes. Gignoux, who came from Portland, Maine, to try the case, said they were guilty of "outrageous misbehavior."

Gignoux ruled Dellinger in contempt for failing to halt his interruptions after being warned.

In dismissing four counts against Kunstler and one against Weinglass, the judge noted the appeals court ruled a lawyer should be given wide latitude to argue his case.

Weinglass "approached the brink but did not cross the line," he said.

Dellinger, Davis, Hoffman, Rubin and Hayden were convicted in February 1970 of crossing state lines to incite rioting at the time of the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

They were acquitted of conspiracy charges. Froines and Weiner were acquitted of all charges.

U.S. Atty. R. Morse Kills Self

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. Attorney Robert A. Morse plunged to his death Tuesday from his fifth-floor apartment in Brooklyn Heights, a few blocks from his office. Police called it an apparent suicide.

Morse had spent the morning in his Brooklyn office. An aide said he left about noon, saying "he was going to a meeting."

He plunged to his death at 3:17 p.m., his body landing face down on the sidewalk.

Police said there was no sign of disorder in his Montague Street apartment. No note was found, but detectives reported that an identification card and other of Morse's personal effects were found on a table near the open window.

President Nixon named Morse chief prosecutor for the eastern district of New York on Aug. 3, 1971. The district covers Brooklyn, Queens and the Long Island counties of Nassau and Suffolk.

Reportedly, Morse was under consideration for a vacancy on the federal court bench in his district.

Blaze Kills 9 In Home

WAYNE, Pa. (AP) — Fire enveloped a nursing home in this Philadelphia suburb Tuesday, taking the lives of nine elderly residents and injuring 42 others, officials said.

Swift rescue work by police, firemen, passersby and about 100 workers from a nearby telephone company helped prevent a higher death toll, officials said.

Flames feeding on a draft sweeping up an open, spiral staircase raced through the gray stone building housing 96 patients and 30 employes of the Caley Nursing and Rehabilitation Center.

Wade Mitchell, a maintenance employe who alerted authorities, said: "I set the alarm off after I saw the smoke and then we started evacuating patients. There were nurses running to and from trying to get the patients out. I jumped with one from a window on the second floor. Neither one of us was hurt."

The residents, many in their 70s and 80s, were helped to a narrow balcony on the second floor and laid on top of one another as they waited for firemen to carry them down ladders.

"The people were covered with heavy, black soot," said George Whitton, a utility company repairman who helped in rescue efforts. "Many were unconscious. Others were speechless, apparently from shock or fright."

Fire Chief Don Wood of Radnor Township said the three-story structure was built around 1900, and that a two-story addition was added about 10 years ago. The nursing home was set up about 15 years ago.

Market Rallies Fizzle

New York (AP) — Despite two minirallies, the stock market closed lower Tuesday as investors looked for bargains amid continuing concern over the nation's energy outlook.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed down 3.31 at 803.21, after early flurries had sent the index 3 and then 6 points up. Volume was 19.30 million shares on the New York Stock Exchange, where declines outweighed advances 948 to 545 among 1,829 issues traded.

The Big Board's broad-based index fell .29 to 49.88 as the Amex market-value index lost .59 to 90.70.

In the absence of any major news to send stock prices higher, recession, energy, and interest rate fears continued to discourage investors, brokers said. Some saw both rally attempts as rebounds from the psychologically important 800 level in the Dow.

"You may pooh-pooh it, but there is a real mystique in 800," said Larry Wachtel of Pache & Co.

On the Big Board, most-active McDonnell Douglas closed off 1½ at 14, after a 306,- 500-share block traded at 14¾, off ¾. Fannie Mae dropped 1¼ to 17⅞ on blocks, while General Motors continued its recent, fuel-related slide, down 1⅛ to 46⅝.

Newcomers to the most-active list included Loews Corp., off ½ to 19⅛; Warner Communications, down ⅛ to 10½; and Southern Co., down ⅛ to 15⅛.

Polaroid, up 2⅛ to 72⅞, rebounded from recent losses. Gold-mining issues also advanced, with Homestake ahead 3⅝ to 54¾, and Asa, Ltd., up 4⅝ to 59⅞. Boise Cascade, which announced a tender offer for two million of its own shares, climbed ⅞ to 13⅛.

On the Amex, Hycel, Inc., topped volume, down ¾ to 2, while Cutter Labs A gained ⅛ to 18. Research Cottrell lost 5½ to 44¼, and Syntex gained 2 to 125⅞.

Head Of Detroit Architect Firm To Visit UNL

The president of one of the largest architectural-engineering firms in the United States will speak at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Monday.

Phillip Meathe, president of Smith, Hynchman and Grylls of Detroit, Mich., will speak on the topic " 'Fast Track' — Design and Development."

"Fast Track" is a method of architectural design which allows designers to begin actual construction of a project before all phases of design and construction are planned, thereby avoiding delays in bidding processes and permitting more rapid completion of the project.

Meathe's talk will be at 2 p.m. in the auditorium of the Sheldon Gallery. He will be on campus as a visiting critic to the graduate program in architecture.

Arab Plans Obtained In April

By GEORGE SHERMAN
(c) Washington Star-News

Washington — United States intelligence last April obtained the complete Egyptian battle plan for the recent Middle East war, but concluded that a "D-Day" for carrying it out did not exist, according to informed sources.

US. intelligence also obtained the Syrian plan of attack, say the sources, but not until September — several weeks before the Oct. 6 war. Because the U.S. government relied heavily on U.S. military attaches, and they relied in turn on skeptical Israeli assessments, acknowledge the sources, neither the Egyptian nor the Syrian battle plans were taken seriously.

The State Department has said that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger received a report from intelligence sources "that gave us the first indication" that the Arab build-up was "something more than merely defensive" the night of Oct. 5.

Three Stages

The Egyptian plan, according to sources who have studied it, had three stages:

—First to cross the Suez Canal in force in the central and southern sectors and smash the Israeli Bar Lev Line on the eastern bank.

—Second, to regroup forces and smash through the Mitla and Giddi Passes and another pass at Pasa leading to the large Israeli base at Bir Gafgaga guarding the interior Sinai.

—Third, to take the whole Sinai, cut off Sharm El Sheik on the Gulf of Aqaba, and to stop at the borders existing before the June 1967 war. According to these sources, the plan did not call for pushing an attack into the heartland of Israel.

As it turned out, after the Oct. 6 attack, only the first stage of the plan succeeded. U.S. intelligence has concluded that the Bar Lev fortifications fell so quickly to Egyptian tank and infantry, that the Egyptian high command was not ready to move quickly enough against the passes to prevent Israeli defenses from holding.

A key element in this initial Egyptian success was the Soviet "Sagger" anti-tank gun, operated by two-man infantry teams, which destroyed about 200 Israeli tanks.

Evidence shows, say U.S. analysts, that it took Russian prodding to get the Egyptian forces to move against all three of the passes on Oct. 14 — eight days after the war began. By that time, however, Israeli reserves were in place and the Egyptian attack was repulsed.

Swift Tank Attacks

The Syrian plan called for swift tank attacks up the main road from Damascus and along the secondary road through the Rafid Salient to recapture the Goalan Heights from Israel. According to Defense Department analysts, this Syrian push, involving between 800 and 1,000 tanks, failed because it rushed too far ahead of Syrian infantry and fell prey to Israeli air power.

According to other sources, only a small number of analysts in the U.S. intelligence community had been cautioning the Nixon administration since May to take seriously the Egyptian battle plan. This minority was hampered by not having an advance date for the attack, as well as by "the established truth" in both the U.S. and Israeli governments that the Arabs must be bluffing because of inferior military capabilities.

Members of the minority acknowledge that their predictions of an Egyptian attack were never more than 60-40 in favor of an attack. The key arguments throughout the late spring, summer and fall was over Egyptian President Anwar El-Sadat's political intention — especially, how he would try to force the U.S. and the Soviet Union to intervene for a peace settlement.

Back in early June analysts who took the Egyptian battle plan and Arab militants' pressures on Sadat seriously argued that the United Nations Security Council debate on the Middle East in June and July could be decisive.

Limited Action

If Egypt failed to gain new momentum foward superpower involvement, they said, the pressure for limited military action would become irresistible.

On July 25, the U.S. vetoed a Security Council resolution which, in the U.S. view, sided with the Egyptian position that Israel must agree to evacuate all occupied Arab territory prior to negotiations. In both the U.S. and Israeli view, this course would leave Israel without secure boundaries.

During the October war, the Egyptian government charged that this U.S. position led directly to the Cairo decision to use force. But by September, argue administration officials, Henry A. Kissinger, now secretary of state, was at the U.N. deeply involved in a new Middle Eastern initiative.

Therefore, intelligence analysts concluded, Egypt and Syria had no need to doubt that the U.S. was focusing on the Middle East without their resorting to force.

In retrospect, say analysts, they were victims mainly of Israeli overconfidence, but also of a failure to see how well the Russians had taught the Egyptians to deflect attention.

Israel May Seek Arab Commitment

©The New York Times

By TERRENCE SMITH

Jerusalem — Israel is expected to press for an Arab commitment to conclude a full and formal peace at the outset of the Israeli-Arab negotiations scheduled to open in Geneva one week from this coming Tuesday.

Senior Israeli officials indicated Tuesday that Israel would call for a final renunciation of war by both sides, the establishment of diplomatic relations and the inaugration of normal commercial ties among all the states of the area.

This sweeping proposal is described here as part of an aggressive opening strategy for the peace talks that has been worked out in recent days at the highest levels of the Israeli government. It is designed in part as a counter to the expected Arab demand for an immediate and total Israeli withdrawal from all occupied Arab territory.

"We want to demonstrate at the outset that this is a peace conference, not a withdrawal conference," a ranking Israeli official said in an interview. "Only when the Arabs define what they mean by peace can we consider drawing a map or pulling back our forces."

In addition, Israel is likely to refuse to negotiate specific issues with Syria unless the Syrians provide at least an accounting of the Israeli prisoners captured during the October war. Syria is believed to be holding up to 100 Israelis, although fears have been expressed here over the fate of many of them. So far Syria has refused even to provide a list of the men she is holding.

Might Walk Out

Israeli officials indicated that Israel might well walk out while the Syrian representatives are speaking at the conference if no progress has been made on the prisoner issue by then.

The Israelis currently expect the conference to open Dec. 18 with a semipublic session in which the four Middle Eastern parties — Israel, Egypt, Jordan and Syria — will each make opening statements outlining their positions. There may also be general statements from the United States and the Soviet Union, the two sponsoring parties, and conceivably one from United Nations Secretary General Waldheim.

This process is likely to take three or four days, after which the Israelis expect an adjournment until after their national elections, which are scheduled for Dec. 31.

There is some concern here about the role the United States will play in the conference, but no alarm. Despite recent reports from Washington about the likelihood of heavy American pressure on Israel to withdraw to her pre-1967 borders, Israeli officials seem confident that they will not be unduly pushed.

Reassurances

Their confidence stems in part from reassurances received Monday and Tuesday morning from Kenneth Rush, undersecretary of state for political affairs. Rush was a member of the United States delegation to the funeral Monday of former Premier David Ben-Gurion.

Rush met for more than two hours Monday night with Premier Golda Meir and conferred Tuesday morning with Foreign Minister Abba Eban.

Israeli sources said Rush had assured Mrs. Meir that the United States would continue to support Israel politically as well as militarily. On the question of American guarantees of Israel's security, Rush reportedly said that the United States was thinking in terms of guarantees of secure borders rather than guarantees instead of secure borders.

The undersecretary appeared to have succeeded in relieving most of the Israeli concerns during his meetings. Reflecting the generally confident official mood Tuesday, one government source said that Israel expected the United States to "let both sides define their positions and then maneuver to close the gap between them."

The Israelis realize that this will require concessions on their part and they maintain that they are prepared to make them in exchange for a satisfactory agreement. But they clearly do not expect at this point to be subjected to irresistible American pressure to withdraw before such an agreement has been reached.

$5.8 Billion Foreign Aid Bill Gets OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $5.8 billion foreign aid appropriation bill restoring President Nixon's full $2.2 billion request for replacing Israel's Middle East War arms losses was approved Tuesday by the House Appropriations Committee.

Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., chairman of the foreign operations appropriations subcommittee which had cut the Israeli arms money to $1.7 billion, offered the amendment in the full committee to restore the funds.

Passman's amendment also would require President Nixon to notify Congress 10 days in advance before spending anything over $1.7 billion of the money.

Passman said he decided to restore the money after Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger Jr., contacted him and gave him information which he said justified the full request.

Administration officials have testified in the past week that the money is needed not only to replace Israel's weapons but to replace them as heavily as the Soviet Union replaces Arab weapons losses.

Congressional critics say the only hard figures the administration has given so far on Israel's need is the $1 billion worth of U.S. arms and ammunition already sent to Israel during and since the war from U.S. stocks.

Authorization of the $2.2 billion was approved 32 to 2 Tuesday by the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

The Foreign Affairs Committee bill would require the congress any spending of the money over $1.5 billion twenty days in advance.

The $5.8 billion money bill approved by the appropriations committee includes $2.4 billion for U.S. foreign aid, $1 billion for the peace corps and international development banks and $2.4 billion in emergency money, including the Israeli aid.

Rationing 'Can't Be Put Off'

Washington (UPI) — U.S. Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., said Tuesday night that gas rationing can't be "put off much longer."

Curtis said gas rationing was a "complex" procedure and "it's all right to take a little time" in implementing it. However, Curtis said, "I don't think we can put it off much longer."

Curtis said he was staunchly opposed to allowing oil companies to increase prices substantially in order to cut gasoline consumption. He said if the object is to cut consumption, "I think it should be done through a tax and not to some private persons' enrichment."

Curtis, a loyal Nixon administration supporter, commented during a telephone interview with the Nebraska television network in Kearney.

The Veteran lawmaker said an increased federal tax on gasoline could be refunded in a "reasonable amount" to anyone who has to make a living by using their car, which includes some 140 million Americans.

Curtis said he was "disappointed" in the resignation of energy czar John Love because Love's familiarity with "the rural economy would have been very helpful to Nebraska."

Curtis said he hoped that the new energy czar, William Simon, would "surround himself with individuals who are very knowledgeable in agriculture, transportation and other industries where fuel is important."

Lincoln Man Injured In Fall

A Lincoln man was listed in "satisfactory" condition at Lincoln General Hospital Tuesday night with injuries he received when he fell through a floor while working at the Municipal Airport Building.

Police said John Neal, 26, of 339½ So. 9th, suffered a broken back, wrist and ankle in the fall.

Happy Hooker' To Take More Time

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — Xaviera Hollander, 30, author of "The Happy Hooker," has been given more time for her defense against a shoplifting charge.

She made a brief appearance in provincial court Monday, but was remanded until Jan. 31. Her lawyer asked more time to bring in a psychiatrist from Toronto to testify.

At a hearing on Nov. 7, witnesses said she told them she took the items June 8 while researching material for a new book.

'Gambler's Special' Bus Is Hit By Armed Robbers

VALLEJO, Calif. (AP) — Sixteen luckless passengers on a "gambler's special" bus bound for Lake Tahoe got wiped out before they got to the gaming tables.

Police said two young men pulled pistols on the passengers just outside Vallejo and escaped from the slow-moving Greyhound bus with $786 in cash, several watches, wallets and personal papers.

One man walked to the front of the bus and said: "All right, this is a holdup. Stay calm and cool and no one will get hurt."

Police said the second went through the bus collecting the loot in a bag.

The robbers then ordered driver Gary Plinley, 28, of San Francisco, to slow down and they jumped out across from a freeway rest stop four miles east of Vallejo.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 12-5
